The John D. Lease Good Business Mileage Anot Canal Needed The D. I Really Talk

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc.

FANCY "REALTORS" and plain real estate men will read with interest of a lease signed by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., as tenant, Columbia University as landlord. To provide three blocks of New York real estate for an opera house site and a fine commercial development in the heart of the city, the Rockefeller lease will pay to Columbia College a total of $261,000,000 in 87 years. That land sold, about 100 years ago, for less than $10,000.

Select your real estate CAREFULLY, but GET SOME.

The value of a machine depends on the length of its working life.

Uncle Sam is fortunate in the lasting qualities and working determination of business men that build the country.

New York merchants gave a dinner to Col. Michael Friedsam, who has finished 50 years of work as head of one of the biggest commercial institutions in America. Asked when he expected to retire, Col. Friedsam replied, "when they carry me out."

George F. Baker, past 80, works as hard as ever, frequently giving away some of the millions he has earned.

John D. Rockefeller, within a few months of 90, will stop with his mashie in the air to tell you "Mr. Kingsbury, head of Standard Oil of California, is a very able man." He has given away hundreds of millions and is still working, although his son carries most of the load.

American business men possess extraordinary "mileage."

Forty thousand men of the United States army and navy are engaged in a battle to last a week. Some of them are theoretically defending the Pacific entrance to the Panama Canal, others are theoretically attacking it.

In a recent war, as Senator Reed of Missouri said the other day, bombing airplanes could destroy the locks of the Panama Canal and put it out of business in five hours. And battleships would hurry in the other direction to avoid being sunk by the same airplane. Uncle Sam needs a sea level canal in Nicaragua.

Job said, in a pessimistic mood, "He that goeth down to the grave shall come up no more . . . neither shall his place know him any more."

It would surprise Job and his friend, Bildad, to learn that Dr. Steinmetz, who died several years ago, is to be heard on the radio throughout the United States on the 30th of this month. A photophone film, made just before his death, will be heard by millions.

Thanks to radio, from this day forward the dead will speak to the living, and nobody will dare question the authenticity of THAT miracle."

It is all right to let Americans help to extract whatever gold Germany can pay. But American suggesting that any of the proceeds should be devoted to that ten billions U. S. A. war debt strikes Europe as very crude.

The British can't quite make up their minds to build a tunnel under the English Channel, connecting France and Britain. They feel as they felt more than a hundred years ago when Napoleon was trying to get across the Channel.

They fear that another Napoleon might march through the tunnel.

If any second Napoleon comes, it will be through the air, and every intelligent Englishman knows it. But tradition is powerful.

A Michigan court sentencing a grandmother to life imprisonment for selling a pint of whiskey was the subject of a newspaper cartoon. Congressman Boylan, Democrat, of New York, wanted to print the cartoon in the Congressional Record. Congressman Tilson, Republican floor leader, terribly shocked, said: "Cartoons must never be printed in the Record."

If they were printed, well selected, the Record would have more readers.

For instance, a cartoon printed in the Record every month, showing what would happen to New York, Washington, Boston, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, New Orleans and Chicago, if enemy planes ever came with bombs from the north, east, south or west, we might possibly promote an adequate air fleet.

MRS. BLISS COLLAPSES

Two ships are missing in New England waters and may have foundered with a total of 33 men, it was learned today when Coast Guard headquarters in the Hub radioed all destroyers and patrol boats in this area to conduct an immediate search.

One vessel is the steam trawler Seiner, owned by the Portland Trawling Company of Groton, Ct., and last sighted on Georges Banks, 100 miles off Highland Light, on January 13.

The other is the American fish boat—a fish carrier—Mary, which left Thomaston, Me., last Sunday for Portland, Me., a trip that should have taken not more than two days at most.

She has not been reported since passing out of Thomaston harbor.

There were 30 men aboard the Seiner, according to her Connecticut owners, and on board the Mary were three men.

Since January 13 when the Seiner was last seen on the fishing banks there have been gales and terrific storms and it is believed that if the steam trawler has not foundered, she is out of coal and drifting somewhere at the mercy of the seas.

The owners' request to the Coast Guard base at New Haven, Ct., that an attempt be made to locate the Seiner was relayed to the Boston divisional headquarters.

A radio alarm to all Coast Guard craft in the local area then was sent out.

The Seiner is of 346 gross tons, is 139 feet long and is 24 feet in the beam.

While the radio alarm was going out two storm-beaten fishing schooners—the Adventure, Capt. Thomas, and the Joffre, Capt. Freeman, Decker—arrived at the Boston Fish Pier with their crews on the verge of exhaustion from battling offshore winds and gales.

Shortly after leaving Brown's Bank, 250 miles from Boston, at noon on Sunday, the schooners encountered heavy northwest winds that at times blew them off their course.

THUG USES CLUB ON VICTIM

A giant "about man s[illegible]ly swinging a wooden club knocked down the owner of a meat market on Sewall Hill ave., Dorchester, today, and escaped with $130 from the till.

According to the proprietor, Malcolm J. Campbell, the robber, more than six feet tall, weighing about 190 pounds, entered the store with the club held out of sight behind him.

Recovering, Campbell telephoned the police and further described the robber as about 24 years old, dark and sallow of complexion and wearing a dark top coat and soft hat.

WIFE SOBS OUT LOVE FOR BLISS

Crying "I loved my husband, I worshipped him, I could forgive him anything," Mrs. Rae Velmore Bliss, attractive young Newton wife broke down completely today on the witness stand in Middlesex Probate Court.

Proceedings were suspended while Mrs. Bliss, sobbing bitterly, was led from the room. She had been testifying under cross-examination, denying charges of cruelty and "drug debauchery" brought against her by her husband, Dr. Emery C. Bliss, Boston chiropodist. Dr. Bliss is seeking a divorce.

Just before Mrs. Bliss' collapse she had been forced to listen to the reading of a letter—written by herself to her husband—in which she told of knowing that his love for her had "gone" and in which she wrote that if she could get enough "dope" she would end her life.

"My body is broken and wracked with pain," read the letter in part. "I sweat through the night and suffer through the day with noth-

10,000 PLANS ARE ENTERED FOR HEARST TEMPERANCE MOVE

U.S. BUSY IN HEARST OFFER

Preliminary analyses of a considerable percentage of more than 10,000 plans thus far submitted for consideration in the Hearst $25,000 temperance prize contest, indicate that the nation has donned its thinking cap in a determined effort to find a substitute for the evils of prohibition.

Entrants for the prize, thus far examined, have been received also from France, Norway, Germany, Roumania, Ireland, England, Scotland, Mexico, South America, Canada and the West Indies.

Thoughtful people throughout the world are competing to win the $25,000 offered by William Randolph Hearst through the Hearst newspapers. Hundreds are writing daily to the Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., for the rules of the contest, which are sent out by mail and are also reprinted here with.

Irrespective of the practicability of some of the plans proposed to end America's reign of lawlessness and corruption, they all indicate that the problem of prohibition is continually in the consciousness of the people. Nearly all express the hope that through the contest a solution will be found acceptable to all classes of law-abiding people and to the Nation's law-makers.

SEND PLANS EARLY

The contest is to close April 30, but on account of the great labor of handling and judging the contributions from readers, the Hearst newspapers urge that entrants for the prize send in their plans at the earliest convenient date.

Following are further expressions of opinion on the contest:

MAURICE BLOCH, minority leader of the New York Assembly—"It is generally admitted that the Durant enforcement plan entered was valueless outside of supplying Mr. Mills with $25,000. The Volstead act, in its present form, cannot be fully enforced because public sentiment is not behind it. Mr. Hearst recognizes that fact, and believes the way to real reform is along sensible and tolerant lines, rather than by severity which will accomplish nothing. His offer of a $25,000 prize is a step in the right direction and he should be commended for taking it.

The great mass of our people admit that present conditions are disgraceful, but not knowing how to remedy them they have just let things drift along. The generous offer of Mr. Hearst will make a lot of people put on their thinking caps and something of value should result. And I sincerely trust that the rational, sane idea that wins the $25,000 and nothing else can do it, will be legally adopted by Congress for it is clear that radical improvement must be made without delay if there is any respect to be left for law.

"WETTEST SUBJECT"

MAYOR JOSEPH C. WILSON, of Rochester, N. Y.—"The Hearst proposal is laudable. Someone should do something to solve the prohibition issue. The trouble is that too much was bitten off in the eighteenth amendment. If the friends of prohibition had started with the elimination of the saloon and worked upwards with other eliminations eventually they might have accomplished prohibition. But now it is doubtful if anything has been accomplished. Prohibition, dry as it would be, is the wettest subject before the public.

WILLIAM F. LOVE, district attorney of Monroe County, N. Y.—If Mr. Hearst's plan results in the evolution of a procedure that can cope with the liquor situation better than is now done, it will be of great benefit to the country. Not only has there been found to be extreme difficulty in obtaining any degree of enforcement so far, but such as has been obtained has been at tremendous expense to the people with actions that are sure to create further lack of respect for government. When we recall the wet conditions of Maine, Texas, the South generally, and the local option sections of the North before prohibition, which had voted themselves dry, we must admit in a calm, cool consideration of the matter, that a great many people never intended to be dry.

The Michigan habitual criminal act seems to be known for sending dry law violators on a small scale to prison for life rather than the manner whose cases were intended to be reached by similar laws passed by other states. The resentment to such use of the four-time convict law is dangerously apt to cause amendment of that law in states who have a more sensible intention as to its use. If this effort produces any plan acceptable to a majority of our people as a reasonable one for controlling a condition that seems to be uncontrollable, surely we would be better off than we are now, if it were adopted.

LEO A. MacSWEENEY, Republican political leader of Rochester, N. Y.—I am in hearty accord with Mr. Hearst's opinion of prohibition. The prohibitionist is like the ostrich. With his head in the sands, he sees none of the evils of prohibition—so called. He blinds himself to the widespread corruption and disrespect for law that has followed the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment, and is content with the fact that he has made drinking a crime by law. Mr. Hearst's sentiments on temperance are mine. I hope that he will bring about a proposal for real prohibition and temperance, which will effect new conditions.

Rules of Contest

THE purpose of the contest is to obtain a practical plan as a substitute for prohibition, which will secure better actual temperance conditions, which will be more easily possible of enforcement by State and Federal authorities, which will offer less encouragement to crime and tend less to debauch the public service, and which will not so outrage and violate the fundamental rights and personal liberties of American citizens.

The rules and conditions of the contest are simple and are as follows:

1—Every person is entitled to enter the contest, but no one person may submit more than one plan.

2—The practicable plan proposed as a substitute for prohibition must be set forth in an article containing not more than one thousand words.

3—This contest will close on April 30, 1929, and no plan which has not been mailed and postmarked on or before that date will be considered.

4—The articles submitted in the contest will be judged by a committee of eminent Americans, the personnel of the committee to be announced at a later date.

5—The full prize of $25,000 will be awarded to the contestant submitting the best plan as a practicable temperance substitute for prohibition.

6—If other plans not awarded the first prize shall still be considered worthy of some compensation by the committee, a second prize of $5,000 and other prizes of $1,000 each may be awarded.

7—Articles submitting a plan to be considered in this contest may be sent to the Temperance Contest Committee, care of the editor of any one of the following Hearst newspapers: Albany Times-Union, Atlanta Georgian, Baltimore News, Boston Evening American, Chicago Herald and Examiner, Detroit Times, Los Angeles Examiner, New York American, Omaha Bee-News, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Rochester Journal, San Antonio Light, San Francisco Examiner, Syracuse Journal, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Washington Herald, Wisconsin News (Milwaukee).

DIVORCEE IN A NEW ROMANCE WITH YOUTH

35, who may or may not be from Stamford, Ct.

Late yesterday afternoon a high-powered motor car, resplendent in baronial accoutrements and sporting a liveried chauffeur, pulled up to a halt in front of the home of Justice of the Peace George S. Dailey. Brock and Mr. Woodhouse and another man identified as Friedland Eike of 1011 Henick ave., Forrest Hills, N. Y., stepped from the vehicle and in tens tones ordered Justice Dailey to give them "a quick marriage."

The ceremony was performed in a few minutes and after leaving a tip which Justice Dailey described as "unusually large" the trio drove off rapidly in the direction of New York.

In filling out the required papers, Mrs. Woodhouse said she lived at 60 Myrtle ave., Stamford, was born in Westfield, Mass., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stevens and had been divorced in Paris in April of 1928 from Charles Woodhouse.

An investigation revealed the Stamford address as a slum district in which Mrs. Woodhouse is unknown.

Brock also admitted to a previous marriage. His papers show that he was divorced in March of 1924 from Martha Maynard in Burlington, Vt. He gave his father's name as William W. Brock, Sr., but left vacant the blank calling for his family's address.

Mrs. Woodhouse, according to Justice Dailey, is very beautiful.

VARE VOTE COST $1.32 EACH

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—Expenditures of Senator-elect Vare in the three-cornered Republican senatorial fight in Pennsylvania in 1926 were defended today before the Senate investigating committee in a closing plea by Vare's counsel, Francis Shunk Brown.

Brown said the expenses of $785,-934 by the Vare-Hedleman-James group in the Republican primary placed an average cost of $1.32 each on the votes cast for the ticket.

"In passing," Brown said, "We submit the inconsistencies of some of those who criticized the expenditures in Mr. Vare's campaign. In the primary election of 1926, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the former Governor, was a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the 12th Pennsylvania district. She was defeated by Representative McFadden. Mrs. Pinchot received 13,332 votes and she reported an expenditure of $18,186.70, an average of $1.33 a vote."

HOLD BOY FOR JEWEL THEFT

A boy with $90 worth of jewelry in his possession, according to the police, was captured today in the rear of the Pleasant Loan Company, Washington st., South End.

On watch because of previous breaks in that locality, Patrolmen Carley and Galvin of East Dedham st. division detected evidence of a break in the shop.

While Galvin watched the front door, Carley went to the rear and lay in wait. Within a few minutes he had collared Antone Ponte, 18, of Mulberry st., Fall River, who was held on a charge of breaking and entering and larceny.

Investigating inside the shop the police reported finding the four pins of the safe doors removed and a screwdriver and hammer on the floor nearby.

Police say the Pleasant Loan Company was held up and robbed on January 7.

PREDICT SNOW FOR BOSTON

Snow will sift down on Boston tonight, with the prospect that, because of a rising temperature, it will change to sleet or rain.

This is according to the reading of the weather map, on which is indicated a storm headed northeast from an origin in Texas and New Mexico.

Back of that storm area is one of thunderstorms.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Increasing cloudiness, followed by snow late tonight or Friday, probably changing to sleet or rain, with slowly rising temperature Friday. Diminishing northerly winds, shifting to easterly Friday.

McCrory's Wife Is Sole Beneficiary

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—The will of John C. McCrory, son of J. G. McCrory, chain store magnate, makes the wife Mrs. Helen G. McCrory, the sole beneficiary and executrix. This was disclosed today when Surrogate O'Brien permitted McCrory's personal attorney, Harry S. Bandler, to open a private safe of the deceased.

McCrory was shot accidentally by a friend while hunting on his father's estate near Orlando, Fla. His legal residence was in Ridgewood, N. J., where his will is to be filed for probate. Bandler said the estate could be called "quite substantial."

Bay State Flu Cases Wane; 6683 This Year

Influenza seemed on the wane today when reports from Massachusetts cities and towns showed a total of 397 new cases as against 461 reported for yesterday.

These figures bring the total number of cases reported in this State for the present year up to 6683 as against 1305 for the entire year of 1928.

Seventy-four cases of lobar pneumonia were reported today as against 84 yesterday, bringing the total up to 927 for this year, as against 404 for the same portion of 1928.

Within the city of Boston 13 new cases of flu and three deaths were reported within the last 24 hours, together with 15 new cases and five deaths from lobar pneumonia for the same time.

Slapped His Face

HUGGED ON "L"

Mrs. Helen McConkey, 23, of Dudley st., accused George Harris of attacking her on a train. Harris was given a suspended sentence of four months in Roxbury court today.

ATTACKER GETS FOUR MONTHS

After a young married woman testified that he put his arm around her waist in an Elevated train, George Harris of Warren pl., Roxbury, was found guilty of assault and battery today in Roxbury court and sentenced to four months in the House of Correction.

Judge Hayden gave Harris another chance, however, suspending the sentence for two years with a warning that if anything similar occurred again Harris would have to serve the term.

The witness was Mrs. Helen McConkey, 23, of Dudley st., who said the train was so crowded that she could not evade Harris but she slapped his face and caused his arrest by Patrolman John Barthel of station 9 at Dudley st. transfer station.

SEEKS CHANGE IN RUM TESTS

A bill to amend the law governing analyses of police-seized liquor will be introduced in the Legislature shortly by Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson, it was learned today on good authority.

Under the amendment, the chemist analyzing the liquor will not know the address at which the liquor was seized, but will have only a number to identify the specimen.

The expected bill is a direct result of the present flurry in the police department and the State chemist's office, arising out of the discharge of William Crawford, a junior chemist, on charges that he submitted wrong analyses of seized liquors.

Crawford, in reply, charged police with tampering with the liquor after the analyses and increasing the alcoholic content.

It was also learned today that many police officers, a number of them ranking officers in the department, have visited the State House and offered to testify for Crawford and against members of their own liquor squad who made the charges of wrong analyses.

The junior chemist performed about 3000 analyses of police-seized liquor in all.

Notwithstanding that Police Commissioner Wilson recently gave out a statement that he was contemplating no shakeup in the liquor squad, or a transfer of any men back to patrol work, it was discovered today that only a short time before the Crawford incident, the commissioner had scanned a list of the squad personnel and had ordered the transfer of several members back to divisions.

2 YOUTHS HELD IN $1000 THEFT

Following recovery by police of four suits of clothes stolen from the home of a retired police captain, together with a fur coat, three overcoats, a typewriter and an electric sewing machine stolen from other individuals and concerns, two youths were held in heavy bail today in Roxbury court for a hearing next Tuesday.

The defendants are Thomas Wight, 20, of Norwell st., Dorchester, and William Crawford of Clifford st., Roxbury. The property is valued at more than $1000.

Wight was arrested by Special Officers McCarthy, Ferrulle and Preston of Dudley st. division, and questioning of him led to the recovery of the stolen goods, some of which, police say, was found at the home of Crawford.

Crawford was charged with receiving stolen goods and Wight with breaking and entering and larceny from Dennis Donovan of Crawford st., Roxbury, retired police captain, and Margaret Mansell of Mail st., Roxbury, owner of the fur coat, and with larceny from Ralph Teaney of Adams st., Dorchester, the Warren Theater and the Singer Sewing Machine Company.

MILLIONS IN DRUGS 'RUN IN'

Washington, Jan. 24—Little hope that the illicit traffic in narcotics will be stopped at the source under present laws and system of detection, has been found in official circles.

The revelation that more than $25,000,000 of drugs has been smuggled into the United States in a little more than six months awakened interest rather than surprise.

Col. L. G. Nutt, chairman of the federal narcotic board, which has the responsibility of issuing permits for the licensed sale of narcotic drugs, explained that any ferreting for illegal sales by his staff was done in the course of their duties in issuing of licenses. It was up to the customs department to keep illicit shipments out of the country.

SHIP COMPANIES AID.

United States Commissioner of Customs E. W. Camp thought that the customs officers at the various ports were becoming increasingly efficient in detecting smuggled drugs and that the steamship companies were co-operating in the eradication of the evil.

Asked if he did not think that this co-operation would be more effective if the original fines imposed on steamship companies whose ships bring drugs into the country, varying from $250.00 to $500,000 were not, on appeal to headquarters here, habitually reduced to $500 or $1000, he said he thought the original penalties would be unfair to the ships' officers or owners who usually had no knowledge of smuggling. Where connivance of officials was proved, no mercy was shown.

FINES ARE REDUCED.

Camp pointed out that the only means of detecting smuggled drugs was through the usual course of searching arriving vessels for contraband or other undeclared goods by the regular staff of customs officers.

About 10 men were required to examine a complete cargo and the salaries of these men was $150 a month. If drugs were found an arbitrary fine of $25 per ounce was levied on the vessel's owners, who were required to post a bond of double the value of the contraband before the ship was given clearance papers.

These fines then were appealed to the customs office here, and if it was shown that the owners and officers had no knowledge of the presence of contraband on their ships, the fines usually were cut to about $1000.

DEATH REVEALS MAN AS CHESS AUTOMATON

Worcester, Jan. 24—The "automaton chess player," that chess experts 25 and 30 years ago used to try to beat without success, is buried here today.

For nine years, the old New York city automaton met all comers in the old Musee and few if any of them ever know they were matching their skill against one of the cleverest human chess players in the country, for such the "automaton" really was.

He was Peter J. Hill, and his experience as the "automaton chess player" was made known after the funeral by Dr. William A. Bryan, superintendent of the Worcester State Hospital, for whom Hill worked before he went to the St. Francis Home.

Dr. Bryan revealed that Hill in his way was one of the most expert chess players in the country. He had told Dr. Bryan about his experience as the "automaton chess player," relating that once he was wounded by a man who fired several shots into the "automaton" after it had beaten him, not realizing it was a human hand that had been moving the men.

On another occasion a woman, not knowing that the automaton was not all machinery, jabbed him in many places with a hatpin. He had to take it without a whimper so that the human element of the automaton would not be revealed.

Hill was well known around Worcester as a chess player and had the reputation of never having been beaten in a local competition, but none of those with whom he played knew he was the old Eden Musee automaton. He was about 60 years of age and little was known here of his early life.

Wife Goes to Jail So Hubby Can Take Care of Children

Bay City, Mich., Jan. 24 (AP)—Mrs. Theresa Efu will serve 191 days in the Saginaw County Jail while her husband, Leslie Efu, cares for their three small children. Both pleaded guilty in United States District Court to violation of the prohibition law.

Judge Arthur J. Tuttle fined one of them one cent and sentenced the other to the 191-day jail term, allowing them to decide who should pay each penalty. It was decided the husband should pay the fine, as he could better care for the children.

Winchester Man Dies Suddenly

Rufus Herrick, 63, of Herrick st., Winchester, was taken suddenly ill on a train as it neared the North Station today and was pronounced dead on arrival at the Haymarket Relief Hospital.

Coming Home

Gladys Milson, 18-year-old Everett high school student, who was reported missing from her home two days ago, was found to be staying at a friend's residence in New York city and will be home today.

RICH NEW YORK WIDOW TO WED PRINCE HENRY

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—Mrs. Allene Tew Burchard, wealthy widow of New York and Paris, is to marry Henry of Reuss, a member of one of Europe's oldest reigning houses.

Mrs. Burchard inherited an estate of $3,000,000 on the death of her husband, Anson Wood Burchard, vice-chairman of the General Electric Company, in 1927. She is now in Egypt and has chartered a houseboat on which she will be hostess to the prince and five friends on an extended cruise on the Nile. Announcement of the engagement was cabled to friends.

The marriage will be Mrs. Burchard's third. She is a daughter of Charles H. Tew of Jamestown, N. Y., and was first married to Theodore Hostetter of Pittsburgh, who died. She had two children by her first marriage, Mrs. Glenn Stewart, who died several years ago, and Theodore Hostetter, an aviator, who died during the World War.

Since the death of Mr. Burchard she has spent much of her time abroad, maintaining a home in Paris and making regular pilgrimages to the grave of her son at Masnieres. In 1927 she dedicated a monument to him and opened a school building which she presented to the town as a memorial.

ELEVEN KILLED BY COLD IN MID-WEST

Chicago, Jan. 24 (AP)—Warm northeast winds may blow away the severe cold that has cost 11 lives in the Middle West.

Sufficient snow to make footing secure was forecast for Chicago while a rising temperature of from 10 to 25 degrees above zero was predicted.

The absence of snow here was in contrast to the intense cold and heavy snow that paralyzed traffic in parts of Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

The storm approached blizzard proportions in Michigan, where the cold accounted for five lives. Minnesota had four dead and two deaths in Chicago were attributed to the weather.

The lowest temperature of yesterday was at Butte, Mont., where the mercury showed 55 degrees below zero.

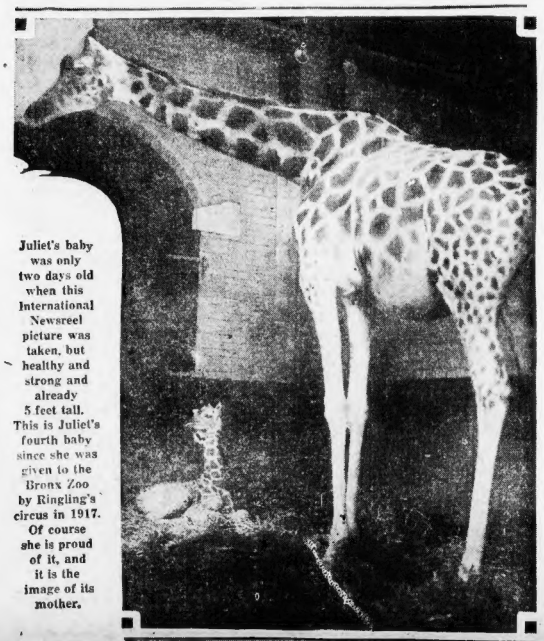
MAMA GIRAFFE AND 5-FOOT BABY



Juliet's baby was only two days old when this International Newsreel picture was taken, but healthy and strong and already 5 feet tall. This is Juliet's fourth baby since she was given to the Bronx Zoo by Ringling's circus in 1917. Of course she is proud of it, and it is the image of its mother.

SOPHIE LYONS AIDS CHILDREN OF CRIMINALS

Detroit, Jan. 24 (AP)—Provision for a home in Detroit for children whose parents are confined in state penal institutions was made in the will of Sophie Lyons Burke, one of the most colorful women criminals of the Victorian age, who died here in 1924 after reforming and leading an exemplary life for a quarter of a century.

Now after four years of litigation, $115,000 of her estate, which totaled nearly a quarter million, is available for the construction of the home.

A compromise agreement was reached between the executor and trustee of the estate and the guardian of one of Mrs. Burke's daughters. Approximately $50,000 was awarded to the guardian of Madeline Brady and a similar amount was bequeathed to Mrs. Florence Bower, another daughter.

Other bequests in the will provided for furnishing delicacies to sick inmates of Sing Sing prison and to inmates of the death house at Sing Sing.

During her career as an international confidence woman Mrs. Burke, then known as Sophie Lyons, had known confinement in many prisons.

POLITE ROBBERS THANK VICTIMS IN AUTO HOLDUP

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—Raymond S. King, president of the King Lighter Company, and his wife, who were driving home in their automobile from a party early today, were held up in a lonely section of Connecticut by three men in an automobile and robbed of jewelry and cash.

As two of the men pointed pistols at King and his wife, a third searched them and took two rings valued at $2500 from Mrs. King and from King they took $2700 in cash and checks amounting to $7000.

"I guess that's all," said one of the robbers. Then he noticed a fur coat Mrs. King was wearing and ordered her to remove it and hand it over, which she did.

"Goodbye, thanks very much," exclaimed another robber, as they stepped into their car and drove away.

EXCLUSIVE!

(Copyright, 1929, by the New York American, Inc., and Universal Service, Inc.) Reproduction in Whole or in Part Prohibited.

New York, Jan. 24—The following radio from the steamship America announcing the rescue of the crew of the Italian freighter Florida was received by radio via Radio Corporation of America:

S. S. America, via Chatham, Jan. 23—New York American—Full crew of Florida, 32 men, rescued in full westerly gale. One lifeboat lost, all men safe. Heavy seas running. Florida survivors came aboard America. They were in weak condition. Most of them were stripped to waist with their clothing badly torn. All are very tired and nearing collapse. Ship abandoned. Proceeding on way to New York.

(Copyright, 1929, by the New York American, Inc., and Universal Service, Inc.) Reproduction in Whole or in Part Prohibited.

New York, Jan. 24—American seamanship, under the leadership of heroic Capt. George Fried of the United States liner America, wrote another glorious chapter in the history of man's traffic on the seas with the rescue of the crew of the Italian freighter Florida.

The following exclusive account of the rescue was radioed to the Boston Evening American:

By Radio Operators Smith and Bowmanman of the liner America Radio, via Radio Corporation of America:

"S. S. America, Chatham, Jan. 23—At 7:40 a. m. January 22 we picked up distress call of American steamer Dandedalke. While proceeding there we picked up distress call of Italian steamer Florida at 11:45 a. m. saying:

"'Damaged rudder, require assistance.'

"At 7:30 p. m., after establishing communication with the Florida, we received this message:

"'In very bad condition. Rudder broken. Sea tremendous. Broke lifeboats. Say when you think you will reach my position.'

"Heavy seas and gale made our progress slow.

"While proceeding toward the Dannedalke and the Florida, our radio compass showed the Florida in near vicinity in the early morning of January 23.

"We continued our radio bearings on the Florida and advised her that we were proceeding in her direction. We took radio bearings continuously.

Tells of Rescue

"The Florida chart room was demolished. No charts and only a few instruments were left.

"This necessitated the Florida's captain taking his sights by sextant being worked out on America from messages.

"At 3:45 p. m., the Florida said that many men of her crew were injured and some were sick, and begged us to do all that was possible to save her 32 men.

"The Florida saw our searchlight.

"At 7:15 p. m. we located the Florida.

"At 7:30 the first lifeboat from the America was launched in the darkness.

"The Florida showed a heavy list.

"Shortly after America's lifeboat was launched, a heavy rain fell with frequent squalls. The sea picked up in strength.

"The lifeboat was still in the water attempting to work its way to the side of the Florida whose deck was awash.

"The men comprising the crew and officers of the Florida were rescued at 10 o'clock."

Capt. Fried, master of the liner America, whose heroic rescue of the freighter crew stirred the world, is no novice in the limelight of fame. Just two years ago, as commander of the President Roosevelt, he made a dramatic rescue of the crew of the English boat, Antinoe.

This earlier feat earned for him the applause of the country and the coveted Navy cross which was pinned on his breast by Secretary Wilbur before a huge crowd in Carnegie hall last February. Yet, although a spectacular figure by reason of his exploits, he remains one of the most modest men in the American merchant marina.

Hero of the Seas

A slight man, a few years over 40, he is a Viking of "downeast" stock. When a boy he ran away from home to join the navy. He rose from the status of a "gob" to the holder of an enviable commission. He served in the navy until 1916, when he was transferred to the naval fleet reserve.

In 1917 he was commissioned ensign, and relieved from active duty in 1919 with the rank of lieutenant. During the war he served on the Solace, Kentucky and Petrel, commanded the Zuiderzyk, and was navigator on the military transport America.

It was during his command of the President Roosevelt that he first achieved fame. On Jan. 24, 1926, he received a despairing S O S early in the morning. It was from the foundering Antinoe.

The President Roosevelt discovered, several hundred miles off its course, the boat which was sinking, and commenced the work of rescue. For four days Fried stood by, in the midst of appalling blizzards and sleet squalls, and by dint of incessant maneuvering, managed to save the crew of 25.

All England rang with praise for the Americans, and the London papers devoted columns of praise to Fried's heroism and consummate seamanship.

A medal was conferred on him by the British Parliament at the request of King George. Fried shrank from ceremony, and made no effort to go to London to receive the gifts in person.

Wife "Thanks God!" Over Capt. Fried's Heroic Rescue

New York, Jan. 24 (INS)—"Thank God you arrived on time."

This message was sent by wireless today by Mrs. George Fried to her gallant husband, commander of the United States liner America, which rescued every one of the 32 members of the helpless Italian freighter Florida in a full gale at sea.

Her eyes shone with pride over her husband's latest achievement. Gone were the hours of anxious waiting on her part since she learned that her husband's ship had started on its extremely dangerous mission.

"God has been very good," she commented. "But my husband did only what he is supposed to do. Nevertheless, I think it was just too wonderful."

FLOATED LINER AT NASSAU

Nassau, Bahamas, Jan. 24 (AP)—The steamship President Garfield, which grounded Sunday morning a few miles east of Mattanilla Shoal, arrived in Nassau harbor under her own steam this morning.

The vessel appeared in excellent condition and made 15 knots en route.

Capt. Quinn hoped to leave Nassau today for Havana. A majority of the 90 passengers who had been brought to Nassau will go aboard, some to continue the round-the-world cruise and others to disembark at various points.

It was learned that the ship had an 18-foot drift which had not been taken into account. This drift carried her off her course and accounted for her striking the shoal.

Liner Paris 32 Hours Late After Battle With Gale

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—The French liner Paris arrived here 32 hours after battling a blizzard, a 100-mile gale and raging seas which carried away a lifeboat and parts of the vessel's wireless antennae.

Capt. Yves Thomas said it was the worst storm he ever had encountered.

Staterooms were flooded and blankets were requisitioned to sop up an inch of water which spread over the salon floor. The deck was coated with a foot of snow and ice.

The Paris narrowly escaped a collision with an American freighter in a dense fog and snowstorm. Passengers awakened by the sudden reversing of the ship's engines reported that the liner came within 10 feet of the freighter. Capt. Thomas refused to discuss the incident.

Hero of Two Rescues Is Worcester Born

Capt. George Fried of the S. S. America, hero of two thrilling rescues at sea, that of the 32 men on the Italian liner, Florida, and two years ago of the crew of the British ship Antinoe, is a native of Worcester. In that city he was educated and spent his boyhood days.

He is of a modest, retiring disposition and refused many honors which various persons desired to shower on him after the Antinoe rescue. Capt. Fried declined to accept the cash reward for saving the crew of the Antinoe, but could not decline the decorations of the American navy and British government.

CAPT. FRIED IS AGAIN HAILED AS SEA HERO

New York, Jan. 24—Having snatched 32 men from the jaws of death in a wild gale and a raging sea, Capt. George Fried of the United States liner America pointed his ship toward this port today, where a hero's welcome awaits him.

For the second time within three years this slim young viking is a hero wherever seamen meet and wherever landsmen thrill to epics of the sea.

Aboard his vessel, Capt. Fried is bringing the crew of the Italian liner Florida, 21 of whom are under treatment in the America's hospital for injuries and exposure, one being in a critical condition.

Dispatches from the incoming vessel reveal that not a man aboard the Florida was lost, although, because of the great waves and a "whole gale," they all had to swim to the rescue boat that put out from the America.

The high waves kept the small boat from approaching close to the side of the foundering Florida, and one by one the crew had to be fished from the sea.

WON RACE WITH DEATH

Chief Officer Manning of the America was in charge of this boat and with him and with the wireless operator of the Florida who clung to his post steadily for three days, Capt. Fried shares hero honors.

They are believed to have been blowing 80 miles an hour during the thrilling race of the America to the freighter's side, and only the indomitable persistence of the big liner's captain, who kept his vessel nosing into the battering waves, made the rescue a reality.

As soon as he found the Florida, by constant radio bearings, Capt. Fried put out a lifeboat. A fresh, sudden squall nearly capsized the small craft and the occupants had to fight for their own lives, but kept relentlessly at their duty by Chief Officer Manning, they did not return to the America until they had robbed the sea of its prey.

The Florida, listing badly, was abandoned and is expected to find her grave beneath the stormy waves 700 miles off the Virginia Capes before salvage vessels can reach the spot.

SNATCHED FROM SEAS

The critically injured member of the Italian freighter's crew is the chief engineer who has a broken leg and several smashed ribs and is suffering badly from immersion in the sea.

The men of the Florida had abandoned hope when the American arrived after a 24-hour race with death. The lookout aboard the United States liner sighted the freighter at 7:15 p. m. Fifteen minutes later Manning and his sturdy American seamen were tossing on the wavecrests, heading toward the Florida. Two hours and a half later the rescue was complete.

The America is expected to reach New York late tomorrow or early Saturday, when Capt. Fried, a blue-eyed seafarer who loves his element and holds steadfast to its highest traditions, will again face the "horrors," as he terms it, of a public reception.

The thoughts of countless Americans were on the America and the Florida at the very hour when the rescue was being effected.

The radio operator of the American informed land stations that the Dannedalke, which had also begged aid has started off under her own power for Bermuda, her crew having rigged a jury rudder.

Roast Beef has finer flavor when seasoned before cooking with GULDEN'S Mustard

"I light a Lucky and go light on the sweets

That's how I keep in good shape and always feel peppy."

Al Jolson
Famous comedian and star of song.

Al Jolson as he appears in Warner Bros. Vitaphone success, "The Singing Fool."

Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet.

Something sensible. "Better to light a Lucky whenever you crave fattening sweets." It brings to men the health and vigor that come with avoiding overweight. To women it offers a slender, fashionable figure.

20,679 physicians have stated that Lucky Strike is less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes. Very likely this is due to toasting which removes impurities. This same process, toasting, improves and develops the flavor of the world's finest tobaccos. This means that there is a flavor in Luckies which is a delightful alternative for the things that make you fat. That's why "It's Toasted" is your assurance that there's real health in Luckies—they're good for you!

Keep fit—reach for a Lucky instead of a fattening sweet. That's what many men have been doing for years. They know the evidence of prominent athletes whose favorite cigarette is Lucky Strike and who say Luckies steady their nerves and do not impair their physical condition.

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say:—

"REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD OF A SWEET."

"It's toasted"

No Throat Irritation—No Cough.

GIRL SWIMMER PREFERS SEA TO HER FIANCE

London, Jan. 24 (INS)—Declaring her "passionate love of the sea" is so great she could never endanger her career by marriage, Miss Mercedes Gleitze, young London typist, who gained fame by swimming the English Channel and the Straits of Gibraltar, has given her "mail order fiance" the air.

In a letter to Private William Farrance of the East Lancashire Regiment, who wooed and won her by mail from Quetta, India, Miss Gleitze has broken the engagement. She permitted her swain to see her only twice, although he came all the way from India to clinch their romance.

Miss Gleitze, who is working in a Manchester cotton mill "to study living conditions among the poor," while awaiting an opportunity to establish new long-distance swimming records, framed her refusal of marriage in gentle but firm phrases.

Her letter says:

"I regret having to inform you that I shall be unable to marry you. I am afraid marriage would interfere with my swimming career. I feel convinced I shall never be able to settle down until I have swum the Irish channel, the wash and the Hellespont; so, what is the use of letting a man make a home for me when, in my thoughts, the sea spells 'Home Sweet Home,' to me?

"I am sure you would make an ideal husband for the right kind of girl. All my best wishes for a happy future are with you."

Private Ferrance is going back to India.

HUB PARK HEAD BARS FUNERALS

Park Commissioner William P. Long protested today the bill to permit funeral processions to parks under control of the Boston Park Department, on the ground that he had not been given due notice of the public hearing.

"Public parks are havens of rest and joy for the public," said Commissioner Long, "and traffic conditions are difficult enough at present without adding long and sombre funeral processions."

He said he had written to President Gaspar Bacon of the Senate, asking that the bill be defeated when it comes up from the House, where already it has had three readings.

Representative Lewis R. Sullivan is sponsor of the bill.

Mr. O'Connor, who celebrated his 80th birthday anniversary last October, is at present afflicted by rheumatism but maintains a full output of his newspaper articles.

Teletype Is Success in Speeding News Stories

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 24 (AP)—The teletype has been pronounced a success in its first local newspaper tests by the Southern Bell Telephone Company and the Atlanta Journal.

The teletype is a first cousin of automatic telegraph printers, except that tape and other untangling alliances have been eliminated, permitting reporters to write their news for instantaneous transmission to an office where a teletype is installed.

The machine received its first thorough test during the trial of George B. Harsh, student slayer, here.

Reporting of State legislatures, court room and police station developments, the telephone company announced, lend themselves well to the teletype, in that reporters "may come into the office and write their news, without doing so actually."

MRS. BLISS TELLS HOW HUSBAND ADMIRED CHARMS OF 'RIVAL'

WIFE WROTE NOTE HINTING AT DESIRE TO END LIFE

ing from you to help me—not even toleration.

"Believe me, if I could get hold of some dope, enough to make me forget, never to awaken to bitter memories, I would have nothing to stay my hand."

Angry With Doctor

The letter was introduced in evidence in refutation of Mrs. Bliss' sworn statement that she first knew her husband intended to leave her in April, 1928. The letter was dated Jan. 4, 1928.

In explanation of the letter, Mrs. Bliss testified that she wrote it when she was angry at her husband for his behavior on Christmas night when he spent the evening with Ruth Adams, a servant girl, in the kitchen rather than with Mrs. Bliss and her guests in the front of the house.

Mrs. Bliss denied being a drug addict. Except for a little veronal she said, she never took morphia except by doctors' orders.

Two physicians, testifying earlier today, supported Mrs. Bliss' denial of habitual use of drugs.

They were Dr. Louis S. Jack of Newton and Dr. Fred A. Higginbottom of Watertown.

Both declared on the stand that they had treated Mrs. Bliss for headaches and insomnia and not recommended morphia hypodermically.

Both testified that, from their observations of the patient and from their knowledge of the history of her case, they would not say that she was a drug addict.

Under direct examination by Atty. George H. Lucey, Mrs. Bliss continued her testimony of yesterday.

Q—When we stopped yesterday, we were discussing what happened in the kitchen of your home when your leg was in a cast and you were on crutches. We were talking about a conversation you had with Dr. Bliss with reference to Ruth Adams. Go ahead with your story.

Wife Says She Never Hit Her Husband With Crutch

A—Miss Mary J. Watson, state parole agent, had been in my home that afternoon and had told me she had heard from Mrs. Hunt Wells' office with reference to Ruth Adams. Miss Watson said Mr. Brownell said that he knew Ruth Adams in New Bedford and that he knew Ruth Adams could not come to Boston at that time, as she was working in a mill.

Economic conditions made her coming here impossible. When Dr. Bliss came home that night I asked him why he felt it necessary to have his counsel invite Ruth Adams to Boston. He said he had him bring her here to protect himself and to protect his rights.

Dr. Bliss said: "Yes, I had her down to Boston. What are you going to do about it?" I said: "I can't do anything about it." That was all I said and I went into hysterics.

I cannot remember anything that happened after that that night. I do not know whether he stayed home because after he declared himself in reference to this freedom he was very seldom home. My leg was in a cast and I was suffering great pain.

Denies Poison Story

Q—During the time that your leg was in a cast did you attend Dr. Bliss 10 or 15 times with your crutch?

A—No, I didn't strike him once.

Corroborating the testimony of Dr. Jack, Mrs. Bliss said that Dr. Jack had treated her for what she described as "raging" headaches. She reaffirmed Dr. Jack's admission that he left two morphia tablets at her house which were later returned by her to him.

Q—Have you ever used drugs or opiates of any kind than those administered to you by a physician?

A—I have taken veronal.

Q—Other than veronal? A—Nothing.

Q—Did your husband at any time ever accuse you of poisoning him? A—Never.

Q—Did you know anything about any accusation of that nature until this divorce suit was filed? A—Never.

Q—Did you ever poison him? A—I did not.

Q—Or attempt to poison him? A—I did not.

Following an operation which she had in the Newton Hospital in June, 1927, Mrs. Bliss went on a trip through New Brunswick with her husband, she testified. En route from Fredericton, N. B., to Hoyt, N. B., she began to suffer from rheumatic pains, she said, and when her husband she visited a Dr. McIntyre at Fredericton Junction, telling the doctor of her trouble.

The doctor asked her if she had used morphia before. She said she had. The doctor gave her three prescriptions, which her husband had filled for her, according to her testimony today.

During the six months' period following her operation at the Newton Hospital, Dr. Godfrey was treating her for rheumatism, Mrs. Bliss testified, but he did not give her morphia then.

Kept "Sketchy Diary"

Mrs. Bliss was cross-examined by Atty. Walter E. Brownell, counsel for Dr. Bliss.

Q—Dr. Bliss has been very good to you hasn't he? A—Very kind at times, extremely unkind at others.

Q—Dr. Bliss has been pretty liberal hasn't he? A—Yes.

Mrs. Bliss then testified that she had married Dr. Bliss before she married Dr. Bliss. Her first husband died, she said.

Q—Do you keep a diary? A—A very sketchy diary.

Q—Do you keep in that diary a record of the visits of Dr. Godfrey? A—No.

Q—How long have you known Dr. Godfrey? A—Since 1912 or 1913, when he called on a member of my family.

Q—He has been quite constant in his attendance on you since that time, hasn't he? A—I think.—

Q—Yes or no? A—Yes.

Q—Yes? That's right? A—Yes.

A—Do you know or can you tell us of any other medical treatment which he has given you beside what has been testified to here? A—Throughout 1925, 1926, 1927 and 1928 he gave me several different kinds of treatment.

Q—Did he ever give you medical treatments which he didn't administer with a hypodermic syringe? A—Yes. He gave me tonics and medicines.

Mrs. Bliss was then questioned closely about the time when she first knew that her husband was planning to leave her. She testified repeatedly that it was on April 24, 1928.

Q—Did he say at that time that he would leave you unless you changed your habits? A—He did not.

Admits They Wrote Each Other Endearing Letters

Q—You and your husband have always been in the habit of writing letters back and forth between yourselves, haven't you? A—Yes.

Q—Frequent letters? A—Yes.

Q—Endearing letters? A—Yes.

Mrs. Bliss then told of frequent visits made by her husband to her mother at Falmouth. She said that Ruth Adams sometimes went to Falmouth to work for her mother.

Cross-examined in regard to testimony which she gave yesterday as to her husband's alleged admiration of Ruth Adams' legs and clothes, Mrs. Bliss said that Ruth Adams was showing Dr. Bliss a new pair of shoes, and Dr. Bliss said to Ruth: "You can't get your foot in that little shoe."

Q—Did that disturb you? A—I did not think it in keeping with Dr. Bliss' position to discuss the clothes of a girl who was on parole from Sherburn, who had been at Sherburn on the charge that she was there for.

She Was Disturbed

Mrs. Bliss here showed signs of irritation at the questions of her husband's counsel. She raised her voice and flushed as she snapped her answers.

Q—It didn't disturb you very much? A—It certainly did.

Mrs. Bliss was then cross-questioned about Miss Watson, the parole agent. She said that Miss Watson visited the Bliss home, but did so only to see Ruth Adams and another maid, who was out on parole. She admitted she knew Miss Watson very well and was friendly with her. She denied that she and another woman had persuaded Miss Watson to write a letter to Ruth Adams at Hoxie, R. I.

Mrs. Bliss admitted that long after Ruth Adams had left her house Miss Watson came there by her own request.

Shown a letter Mrs. Bliss studied it with a lorgnette and identified it as one written by herself to her husband January 4, 1928.

Q—When did you first say you knew your husband contemplated leaving you? A—April 24, 1928.

Pressed still further on the point of this date, Mrs. Bliss answered with visible impatience, "On April 18, 1928, he wrote me a very endearing letter and I think he meant what he wrote."

Was "Happy Trip"

Q—When Mrs. Adams left your house, everything was peaceful wasn't it? A—Yes.

Q—There was nothing in the trip to Fredericton, N. B., which your husband did other than what would have been done by an ordinary normal man? A—It was a very agreeable, very happy, very delightful trip.

Atty. Brownell her offered in evidence a letter. After some argument between counsel, it was agreed that the letter should be read by Brownell rather than by Mrs. Bliss.

The letter was on delicately tinted yellow stationery. It was dated 6 p. m., Watertown, January 4, 1928.

It read: "Dear Emery: I feel so sorry that I have got to be such a burden on you. Now your love for me has gone, but, as I have told you so many times, you can free yourself any time you want to and then play the part of the man that your Maker intended you to be, not that of a nasty, fighting child, working out everything that is in your system on me.

"God knows I have enough to contend with, having your worried about my health. My body is broken and wracked with pain. I sweat through the night and suffer through the day with nothing from you to help me—not even toleration.

"Believe me, if I could get hold of some dope, enough to make me forget, never to awaken to bitter memories, I would have nothing to stay my hand.

"When it happens, remember I have ceased to worry and break my heart over the little love and appreciation from you.

"Lovingly, Rae."

When Brownell concluded the reading of the letter, Mrs. Bliss appeared unable to restrain the emotion that had visibly been affecting her as she sat on the stand.

Snaps at Lawyer

"Don't you think that's interesting?" she snapped sarcastically.

"The court will decide that," answered Atty. Brownell.

Q—You knew then in January, 1928, that your husband had ceased to love you? A—(Loudly) No.

Q—Why did you write that his love had ceased? A—I referred to the things that happened Christmas night, that happened with Ruth Adams.

Q—Weren't you expressing your mind in this letter? A—Yes.

Q—Did you give it as an expression of your mind when you wrote that, if you got enough dope, you would make an end of yourself? A—No.

Mrs. Bliss then explained that she was temporarily bitter against her husband when she wrote the letter of January 4, 1928. She was angry, she said, because Dr. Bliss had stayed in the kitchen with Mrs. Adams on Christmas night when she, Mrs. Bliss, was entertaining company in the front of the house.

Q—You refer in this letter to the dope. What do you mean by that. A—That means poison or anything that I would have put to end my life.

Q—Do you connect the words dope and poison? A—(Smiling) No, I confuse them. If I meant poison, I would say dope and if I meant dope I would probably say poison.

Bank Embezzler Given 10 Years

Mount Holly, N. J., Jan. 24 (AP)—Edward B. Reeve, former cashier of the Burlington County National Bank of Medford, N. J., today was sentenced to 10 years imprisonment and fined $20,000 for embezzling $168,000 from the bank.

More Aged Poor as Life Span Is Increased

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—Because the normal life span is increasing, old age is becoming a greater problem, it is found by the board of managers of the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor.

Probably between 15 and 20 per cent of the population of the country over 65 are wholly or partly dependent.

Since 1850 the ratio of people over 65 has increased 64 per cent.

Woman Burned to Death in Montreal

Montreal, Que., Jan. 24 (INS)—An unidentified woman was burned to death today in a fire which destroyed a four-story apartment house on Tupper st. Another woman was nearly suffocated.

Of 12 families rescued from the building, none had any idea as to how the fire started. A passerby discovered the blaze. The loss was estimated at $50,000.

MANY NOTABLES AT FUNERAL OF DOUGHERTY

Funeral services for William Leonard Dougherty, assistant managing editor of the Boston Daily Advertiser, who died suddenly last Monday, were held today from St. Luke's Church, Waverley.

An escort including more than 40 members of the Boston Advertiser and Boston Evening American staff—co-workers of Mr Dougherty for many years—marched at the head of the funeral procession to the church.

A requiem high mass was celebrated by the Rev. Richard H. Sploine, pastor of St. Luke's Church.

PRAYER AT MT. AUBURN.

Pallbearers included John A. McGowan, Hinson Sidler and Robert Court of the Boston Daily Advertiser, Edward Dohan of the Boston Post, Henry Daily of the Boston American and Lawrence Schofield of Weymouth.

The body was taken to the receiving vault at Mt. Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge, where prayers were offered. Burial will take place later at Westboro, the home of Mr. Daugherty, where his mother, Mrs. Ann Dougherty, and his sister, Miss Harried Dougherty, are now living.

Representatives of every newspaper in Boston and men prominent in political and professional circles thronged the church at the funeral mass.

NOTABLES PRESENT.

Among those were M. C. Priest, publisher of the Boston Advertiser; James W. Reardon of the Boston Evening American, former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, Atty. Frank Juggins, Joseph Di Pesa, T. Frank Joyce, vice-president of the Boston & Maine Railroad; Gordon Scott of the Boot and Shoe Recorder, Capt. William Blake, head of the Veterans' Bureau, and a delegation from the Charitable Irish Society.

The Boston Post was represented by Edward Dunn, city editor; Herbert Baldwin, Joseph Hurley, superintendent of the plant department, and Mrs. Hurley, Charles Young, assistant managing editor; Timothy McInerney, Frank Fay

CO-WORKERS ATTEND.

John J. Donovan, Walter McCloskey, night city editor; Bert Woodlock, school sports editor, and George N. Noble, represented the Boston Globe.

Rienard Sears of Pathe News, Pudnic King and Mrs. Martha Adams of Pacific and Atlantic Photos, were among other newspaper friends of Mr. Dougherty who attended the funeral.

Others who attended were Hugh Breen, former secretary of the Red Sox; Eugene McSweeney, former circulation manager of the Boston Evening American, and Jeremiah Delaney of the Boston Advertiser staff, who coached Mr. Dougherty in his track activities in his preschool days at Exeter.

Music at the services was furnished by Mrs. Frank Doherty, organist, and by Mrs. Eva L. Shea and Miss Angela Lizano.

Finds Patient Dead in His Office

When Dr. Robert J. Kirkwood of East Broadway, South Boston, entered his office today, having been informed by the maid that a patient was waiting, he found the patient, a man of about 50, dead in a chair from a heart attack.

The body was removed to the Northern Mortuary to await identification.

Run Booze Over Border as Crowds Look on

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 24 (AP)—Opportunities afforded liquor smugglers by the frozen Detroit river were described by the Toronto Globe today as follows:

Six inches of river ice interrupted by less than 100 feet of open water, coupled with the fact that Sumner C. Slayer, chief of the Detroit Customs Patrol, and a dozen of his men had thrown up their jobs, presented to the rum trafficking fraternity an opportunity which they have been denied for many months.

Taking advantage of the situation the smugglers speeded up production and by using small automobiles, sleighs and even old-fashioned toboggans, succeeded in transporting an undetermined quantity of liquor and Canadian beer to Detroit and its environs.

The operations were carried on boldly and in the sight of hundreds of spectators who lined the shores to watch the progress of the scores of caravans over the frozen waste.

In several instances small cars were observed hitched to boats with steel runners which whisked them across in express time. When the open stretch of water was encountered, the boats were utilized.

TO BURY POLICE CHIEF SATURDAY

The funeral of Sergt. Joseph W. Comerford, leader of the mounted squadron of the Boston police department, who died after five days' illness, will be held Saturday morning from his home, 2 Moreland st., Roxbury. There will be a requiem mass at 9:15 o'clock at St. Joseph's Church, Roxbury.

Sergt. Comerford for years but practically every parade held in Boston. His death came as a shock to members of the department and thousands of citizens who knew his figure, rare smile and expert horsemanship as he rode in parades and in the Back Bay district.

He was on duty until a few days ago. Death was caused by pneumonia, although he had been ailing for about two years.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth A. (Fitzgerald) Comerford, and two sisters.

He joined the police force in 1907, after eight years' service in the 7th Regiment of Cavalry, regular army, which he joined at the time of the Spanish War. He was made a sergeant in 1919.

For the past month he has been off street duty, taking care of the police horses. Although his wife was possessed of a considerable fortune when they were wed, he decided that he would rather remain on duty with his horses than go into business.

PISTOL LAW AIDS CROOKS, SAYS ATTORNEY

Anti-pistol laws result, not in disarming the criminal, but in placing the honest citizen at the mercy of the gun-toting crook, according to Clarence W. Rowley, Boston attorney, who went on record today as opposed to bills providing for further restrictions on the possession of firearms.

In a letter to the Massachusetts Legislature's committee on public safety, which held a public hearing today on the proposed firearm bills, Atty. Rowley said:

"The effect of the law which makes it a crime to carry a pistol is to disarm the honest citizen without disarming the criminal.

"Our law against carrying a weapon has no effect whatever toward preventing the thief, robber, murderer or other criminal from going armed. The most that can be said in its favor is that it provides a penalty against the criminal who is found to be armed.

"It is folly to think that the criminal classes will obey any firearms law, even though it carry a severe penalty. The criminal of today pays little attention to a penalty except to joke about it.

REOPEN AIMEE KIDNAP CASE IN BRIBE PROBE

Los Angeles, Jan. 24 (AP)—An official revival of the so-called Aimee Semple McPherson kidnapping case was forecast today after it became known that all documents relating to her mysterious disappearance nearly three years ago had been ordered brought before a legislative investigating committee.

The committee is under call to meet here Saturday to start an inquiry into the acceptance by Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy of the Los Angeles Superior Court of a $2500 check while she was facing charges of conspiring to defeat justice, by aiding a false story to a grand jury about her much discussed disappearance. The committee is to determine whether the filing of impeachment charges against Judge Hardy is warranted.

Judge Hardy, who has dropped from the membership of the American Bar Association because he accepted the money, has declared it was a freewill offering from the famous evangelist and was given for legal advice which he had proffered to her over a period of years. He declared it had nothing to do with the conspiracy charge. This accusation was dropped by the district attorney, Asa Keyes, on the grounds that there was insufficient evidence to convict. Keyes is on trial here at present on a charge of accepting bribes from defendants in other criminal cases. The grand jury which indicted Keyes also was said to have heard evidence that Mrs. McPherson spent a large sum of money to forestall being brought to trial. The investigating body, however, never has made a public report on the McPherson case.

Mrs. McPherson has announced she would appear before the legislative committee Saturday. Judge Hardy, who also was subpoenaed, has said he would obey the summons.

NORTH IRELAND SWEPT BY FLU

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Jan. 24 (AP)—Influenza is rampant in Northern Ireland.

Fifty per cent. of the school children in Belfast were on the sick list today. It was estimated that there were more than 8000 victims in the Derry district, where schools were being closed.

Liverpool, Eng., Jan. 24 (AP)—Influenza and pneumonia have claimed numerous victims in this city and neighborhood. It was calculated that there were 20,000 cases in Liverpool today and deaths from pneumonia were reaching serious numbers.

One hospital had 60 deaths in nine days. Half of the members of the staff were affected.

Rabbi Bril Speaks at Roxbury Friday

On Friday evening at 8:15 p. m. at the Crawford Street Synagogue, 108 Crawford st., Roxbury, Rabbi Dr. I. L. Bril will be the speaker of the evening.

Rabbi Bril is former editor of the English section of the Jewish Daily News and at present field secretary of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America, and editor of the English section of the Day, a New York daily newspaper.

Dogs May Escape Trials for Murder

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 24 (AP)—Kentucky's murder trials for dogs, which have established court history and caused comment the country over in the past, are destined to end, if a ruling handed down by Judge J. Keene Dangerfield is upheld in the Court of Appeals.

Judge Daingerfield held that the old law which provided for "murder trials" of dogs under sheep killing charges, has been repealed by an act of 1928 relating to the licensing of dogs.

Hub Ask Cape Cod Canal Be Improved

Washington, Jan. 24—Gen. Jadwin, chief of engineers, will be met by a large delegation of New England congressmen, led by Representative Gifford of Massachusetts, today at the War Department to take immediate steps to widen, deepen and improve Cape Cod Canal.

Boston shipping interests are keenly interested in the improvement of the canal, for if the canal is made a better channel of navigation it will increase the coastwise commerce that goes in and out of Boston.

One Dead, One Hurt as Plane Crashes

Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 24—Philip Gluckman, 24, of New York, a passenger, was burned to death, and James Harp, 23, of Jacksonville, an unlicensed pilot, was seriously injured when their airplane crashed at the municipal airport and burst into flames.

Paper Official Dies

Brattleboro, Vt., Jan. 24—John P. Riley, 69, former superintendent of the Bellows Falls, Vt., plant of the International Paper Co. and who in 1915 was made assistant to the president of the company in New York, died in the Deaconess Hospital, Boston. He failed to rally from an operation.

29 DOGS SAVED AS ONE DIES IN FIRE

Twenty-nine wriggling and yipping dogs were saved and one whose lungs were not as strong as his pals, met death early today when fire broke out in the animal shop of Frank Gibbon at 121 Stanford st.

Today the shop was in mourning for the one dog, a small terrier, who joined his pals in a valient fight for life but failed to withstand the heavy smoke that filled the shop.

Patrolman Wallace J. Lindsey of Joy st. station was treated to what was probably the strangest medley of sound ever enjoyed by a Boston policeman, when he passed Gibbon's store early today.

The dogs, of all breeds and species, raised their voices in a weird chorus of protest against the smoke that swirled about the shop as the fire, believed to have been started by a carelessly discarded cigarette, gained headway.

Investigating, Lindsey saw the flames shooting up inside the store and sounded an alarm. He then plunged his foot through the window, and when firemen of Ladder 1 and 24 and Engines 6, 4 and 8 arrived, they faced the task of carrying out the dogs.

Some of the animals were recalcitrant, but, with the aid of Patrolman Lindsey, the firemen finally herded them on the sidewalk. The blaze was checked in quick time, the damage amounting to about $200.

STOP BEING A "LAXATIVE ADDICT"

It isn't wise—it isn't necessary—to be a slave to habit-forming laxatives. The continued dosing of the bowels to relieve constipation can mean a lifetime of troubles—unless you take the step now to stop it.

Stop it by taking the remedy that tends to do away with all dosing—Thalax the "habit-less" laxative. Take a tablet or two before going to bed. In the morning there will be no distress, no griping. Instead, the bowels will move easily, naturally. Continue Thalax at intervals, when you need it, and you'll experience always the same prompt, easy results. But you'll find those intervals growing longer and longer, until you'll need a laxative only very rarely.

Why? Because Thalax has a strengthening, toning effect on the bowel muscles, gradually bringing back their natural easy action, making medicine entirely unnecessary.

It's worth the trying, at least, isn't it? Ask for Thalax at any good drug store. Bottle of 30 tablets, 35 cents. Should your druggist not have it on hand, we will be glad to supply you direct. K. A. Hughes Company, Boston, Mass.

'Fight Back,' Advice of Graphologist

By LOUISE RICE
Noted Graphologist

DEAR MISS RICE: I feel so discouraged. What is the trouble? Do I give up too quick, or do I lack confidence in people? Is there any chance of me ever having peacefulness and contentment in my home?
Gertrude B.

th living. What e ap to quick or le?
me of me ever

Of course you know, my dear woman, that I can't tell you what will happen and therefore I do not know whether conditions in your home will change or not, but I can and will tell you something which may throw light on the whole situation.

You see, you have a nature which will stand almost anything for the sake of peace—and that, unfortunately, while a virtue in itself, is one of the causes of great unhappiness and injustice in this world.

Unhappily, too many of us have the disposition which will take advantage of this peaceful disposition.

You often see the one person of a group who is doing the most work making the least fuss about it, bearing the most from everybody and trying hard to make peace in the group, being the one person with whom all the others quarrel!

The reason is plain, though not to the credit of humanity—they quarrel with that one because of the streak of cruelty which we still have which makes us "pick on" the one who either cannot or does not want to fight back.

Now, then, apply this to your own case and ask yourself if a little more vigorous attitude on your part might not make things better.

Ask yourself if you really must bear all that you do, and if it would not be just to demand that others should bear more. I believe that you will find this helpful.

THE "g," which is practically the figure 8, written low on the line, and the "Greek d," which is a "d" made almost as the ancient Greeks used to make their "delta," are two letters of the alphabet which tell the graphologist that the mind of the maker of them is intensely cultured.

glass'd

By this, I mean that people making these formations find mental training, and especially training in arts and literature, very easy to gain, and that, with the slightest encouragement, they become highly specialized mental workers.

We do not jump at conclusions and say that people not using these two forms are uncultured, of course, but we can say that those using them are innately cultured.

Farmers Here for Tour of Market

In an effort to give farmers a clearer idea of the better ways of placing marketable produce on the market for the consumer, county agents from Vermont and New Hampshire are here with 35 farmers from those two States. The farmers will make a tour of the market today and return home later.

While visiting the market today, the visitors will be shown how to pack, grade and standardize their products.

Have Your Handwriting Analyzed

Send a sample of your handwriting to Miss Louise Rice, noted graphologist, for analysis. Write plainly on unruled paper, in ink or pencil, adding your usual signature.

To cover clerical costs, enclose 10c in silver or stamps. Also enclose a stamped, addressed envelope. The individual analysis will be returned to you within the period of one or two weeks.

Miss Rice replies only to such questions as can be answered through the science of graphology. Write your name and address on both the sample to be analyzed and the coupon below. Letters will not be published if sender so requests.

MISS LOUISE RICE,

HERE MONDAY, "ALIAS THE SPOOK"

Read the new six-day serial hit, "ALIAS THE SPOOK," by Winifred Van Duzer which begins next Monday in the Boston Evening American. Throbbing with love, mystery and adventure, it tells a story that starts with a punch and never lets up.

Did the great arm of the law stop Iris, the pampered heiress, in her mad search for thrills? Read how this wealthy beauty loved a notorious crook. What should Mary, the little farm girl do—reveal the identity of the $100,000 bank robbery? Could she save him with a pure love? The love not relentlessly traps all three. How can two find happiness?

Revealed here—what Broadway night clubs shield, the secret dens where crime is born—the haunts of crooks—the careless life of the idle rich.

Thrill seekers can start this new mystery of love, "Alias The Spook" next Monday in the American.

Food King

CHEF AT PINI'S
Rinaldo Messuesso, chef at Pini's and the Weber Duck Inn and noted as "food king," who lectured before the Martha Lee Kitchen.

NOTED CHEF IS MARTHA LEE, LECTURER

No wonder Pini's new restaurant at the Hotel Buckminster sprang into such instant popularity in Boston, when such delicious food is served as was demonstrated in the Martha Lee Kitchen by Rinaldo Messuesso, chef of Pini's and the Weber Duck Inn at Wrentham.

Roast Weber Duck, with a marvelous dressing and gravy. Planked Steak with all the fixings. Woodcock Relish. Pini's famous Cheese, Carolina Sweet Potatoes, were some of the Pini specialties prepared by chef Messuesso and enthusiastically sampled by a large audience.

Already the ladies of the Martha Lee cooking school are planning a luncheon at Pini's restaurant on Tuesday, February 12, at 1 p. m. And all are looking forward to another lesson by chef Messuesso in the spring.

Don't forget that every Wednesday Boston's best chefs give special lessons, without charge, to readers of this paper. Why not plan now to be on hand next Wednesday?

And be sure to watch for chef Messuesso's recipes in this paper next Saturday.

Miss Culberson Held as Drunken Driver

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—Miss Mary Elizabeth Culberson, 26, daughter of the late Charles A. Culberson, former senator from Texas, faced charges today of driving while intoxicated and leaving the scene of an auto collision.

She was arrested after police had chased her car six blocks. She was taken from her badly battered car to a police station and then to the House of Detention. Police charged the car hit five parked autos on Pennsylvania ave., forcing two onto the sidewalk.

Yeggs Work Hard to Open Safe for $200

A full day's work was accomplished by yeggs in a few hours today when they succeeded in opening a safe at the Quality Laundry in Beacon st., Somerville, and securing $200.

After breaking one pane in a window they had to force through a metal door, break into the engineer's room and take tools, wheel the safe from the office to the rear and knock off the combination. Then the door jammed and they were forced to cut out a panel with a cold chisel and break through the inside wall of cement.

How to Darken Gray Hair

By BERYL WEST

I repeat what I have often said—there's no excuse today for a woman submitting to gray hair and looking older than she feels. Gray, faded or streaked hair may be so perfectly restored to color that it need be only your own boudoir secret. Nothing more or less than a mixture of sage tea and sulphur is the magic.

One may either prepare the mixture at home, or as most people prefer to do, buy it already prepared and ready to use. Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur is the name of the ready-to-use preparation and since all druggists sell it at 75c a bottle, there is really no need of going to the trouble of making it yourself.

You simply moisten a comb or soft brush with it, and draw it through the hair, one strand at the time. One application banishes the gray and one or two more completely restores your gray, faded or streaked hair to its original color. There is no artificial, dyed look. The whole effect is one of perfect naturalness. My readers would be surprised if they knew of the thousands of men and women who use this preparation.

TAXI AND RAILROAD FARES PAID TO OUT-OF-TOWN CUSTOMERS

FARMERS OPEN BIG DRIVE FOR TARIFF BOOST

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—Opening the drive of the farmers for higher tariff protection Rep. Selvig, Republican, Minnesota, urged the House Ways and Means Committee today to increase duties on livestock, dairy and poultry products, flaxseed, corn, potatoes and potato starch, rutabagas and clover seeds.

He said the farmers were looking hopefully to Congress to obtain for agriculture protection equal to that of any other American industry.

Selvig said the United States imports sufficient farm produce to displace the production of about 70,000,000 acres, or about 4½ times the cultivated area of his home state.

Declaring stabilization of the livestock industry would result from higher duties, B. F. Davis of Denver, representing the Colorado Legislature, Farm Bureau and Stock Growers Association, urged the following rates:

Cattle for slaughter, 4 cents a pound; stockers and feeders, 3 cents; fresh beef and veal, 8 cents against 2½ cent.

Claude H. Rees, Colorado State senator, joined in the request for higher duties, declaring the cattle industry was in a state of unrest because it was uncertain whether the Secretary of Agriculture would remove the embargo against fresh meats from South American countries where the foot and mouth disease is prevalent.

Should the embargo be removed, he said, 100,000,000 cattle in South America would come in competition with domestic cattle. Asked by Representative Treadway, Republican, Massachusetts, who would absorb the increased duties, Rees said he thought the retail merchants could stand a little less profit.

Freed Slayer of 'Playboy Suitor' Sails for France

New York, Jan. 24 (INS)—Madame Paulette Saludes put behind her the memory of six years in prison and today sailed for sunny France, her native land.

Mme. Saludes killed her married suitor. He was handsome Oscar M. Martelleau, broker and Broadway playboy. The French woman's defence was that he was faithless—that he had deserted her for another.

Her trial was spiced with beauty and intrigue. Some said the beautiful madame was a French secret service worker and that there was a diplomatic secret behind the slaying. The French diplomatic representatives denied this vigorously. However, she escaped the death penalty.

One of the last official acts of Governor Smith was to pardon the Frenchwoman. The commutation of sentence was made conditional on the prisoner leaving America and returning to France.

BONE DRY RULE PLANNED FOR WASHINGTON

Washington, Jan. 24 (INS)—What to do with the $24,000,000 prohibition appropriation, provided this sum eventually is authorized by Congress, is getting considerable attention from high Treasury officials.

With 21,000 dry cases pending in the federal courts and a present enforcement machine of about 3000 men, one official said facetiously that three times the appropriation should boost the untried cases to at least 60,000 in three years.

There is a growing belief that the new administration may take steps to make the District of Columbia "bone dry" and a model capital from the enforcement standpoint.

Bootleggers are numerous in the district. There is a large available supply of liquors from Baltimore, Philadelphia and other rum cities.

As to such funds as might be allocated by the President to the Coast Guard and customs, officials said the border patrol would be expanded, port forces increased and personnel and equipment of the Coast Guard built up to cope with smugglers.

If sufficient funds were available the Coast Guard would junk some obsolete destroyers and replace them with cutters effective both in blockade and in life-saving. The Coast Guard airplane fleet also would be increased.

'PRINCESS' AGAIN BRIDE

Delight Potter Arnold, Washington, D. C., society beauty who annulled her marriage to "Prince" Rouffat Bey Haliloff and is now the bride of Charles Willard Taylor, called a handsome New York stock broker. She had told the court that she discovered her "Prince" was only a commoner and not of any royal line. Photo is by International Newsreel.

SENATE HOPES TO PASS NAVAL BILL THIS WEEK

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON,
International News Correspondent.

Washington, Jan. 24—With leaders predicting enactment by the week-end, the Senate today resumed consideration of the administration's new cruiser bill which proposes to eliminate some of the naval inequality between the United States and Great Britain.

The first deficiency bill meanwhile is returned to the House, which must approve not only the $75,000,000 tax refund item but the $24,250,000 appropriated for better enforcement of prohibition, both opposed by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

Administration leaders reported they had secured a gentlemen's agreement from the opposition not to filibuster against the cruiser bill.

Two important appropriation bills—the agricultural and the independent offices supply bills—are pending in the Senate and must be enacted promptly. Four others are pending in the House or in committee. All must be enacted before March 4 to carry on government functions for the Hoover administration.

A movement has been launched in the House for the building of five cruisers and an aircraft carrier, even if the larger construction bill should be held up in the Senate.

Representative Britten, Republican, of Illinois, sponsored the new plan, which called for adding a $12,500,000 item on the regular naval appropriation bill.

PROPER PRECAUTIONS PREVENT THE SPREAD OF COLDS AND INFLUENZA

The faith of health officials in the intelligence of the public has been justified. Rather than taking drastic measures, these officials, in most centers hit by the present epidemic, have been content to issue warnings. The readiness with which the advice has been followed speaks well for the common sense of all of us.

Colds and influenza are prevented by living a sane and normal life. Regular sleep, regular meals with wholesome food, plenty of water—inside and out, exercise in the open—these are among the best ways to keep up the body's resistance to disease of all kinds. Health experts strongly recommend the avoidance of crowded places.

Many thousands are becoming educated to the regular and frequent use of Vapex. This concentrate, obtainable from your druggist in the little square dollar bottle and the package with the green triangle, is the most modern way to prevent and to stop a cold. Each bottle contains 50 treatments. Merely put a drop on your handkerchief, breathe the healing vapor. It is refreshing and will keep your head clear. The strength of one application lasts for an entire day.

WHO are the people this new car will attract?

A NEW CAR is coming. Not a new make of car. But an essentially brand new edition of one of America's best sellers. It is a six. It has bodies by Fisher. It is bringing new luxury, new beauty and new performance to its price field.

That much is fact. But now let's see. Who are the people this great new car will attract?

Most typical Americans of today are progressive. Years ago, they hustled the horsehair sofa off to the attic to make way for newer, more modern furniture. Today they are demanding more beauty, more luxury and finer performance than ever in their automobiles. Some of them have reached the point of owning two or more cars. Most of them have not. But they're all getting ahead. They all love fine things. These are the people this new car will attract.

The Oakland Motor Car Company has been building the Pontiac Six for this progressive group during the past three years. And so it knows a lot about them. And with this knowledge, Oakland has created a new car especially for them—not merely a refinement of an earlier model, but a brand new car from beginning to end. It brings new standards of style to its price field.

It provides the luxury and beauty of entirely new bodies by Fisher. It offers them performance they can tell their friends about. It will enable them to make a long step up the ladder of motor car quality with only a slight increase in investment.

You will appreciate the incomparable value of this car. Watch for the

FULLERS TO BE HOME FOR OPERA, SAYS BETTY ALDEN

Former Governor and Wife Aboard Aquitania After Visit to Art Centers of Paris.

THE GENIAL GENTLEMAN WHO VERY RECENTLY WAS Governor of the Commonwealth and the handsome matron who so ornamentally filled the post of First Lady come steaming home across the ocean in good time to sit in auspicious elegance at the opera when Lakme holds the boards for the first Friday. Bon voyage to these two popular travelers hardly died on the crisp winter air before welcome home sounds for them, so short an interval has elapsed between departure and return. The entire span is not more than four weeks, but they were weeks filled pleasantly with the diversions that most attract the Fullers when abroad

EVERYONE KNOWS THAT THE EX-GOVERNOR NEVER misses an important auction sale of paintings, attending either in person or by proxy. And brief as has been his present visit in London and Paris the little bird who twitters entertainingly of this and that has something to say about new art treasures for the Fuller establishments. As for Mrs. Fuller, certain famous designers in the French stronghold of fashions hail her arrival with delight, and proceed to turn the trick of modeling a number of known or two for Madame's enhancement. A most satisfactory client is Mrs Fuller, having a stately carriage, a radiance of good looks and remarkably elaborate jewels and accessories to accompany the grand toilette.

MR. AND MRS. FULLER SAILED YESTERDAY FOR THESE shores on the Aquitania, leaving Madame Fuller, the ex-Governor's mother, and his sister, Mrs. Fuller Halsey, established in an apartment in Paris for a more or less indefinite stay. I believe the arrival here of the Fullers is arranged purposely that they may be in their box for the Delibes opera, where they will entertain with their usual eclat and brilliance, and for other Diplomatic functions and evenings as well. The little bird also twitters of another party across the Big Pond in the spring, a program easily carried out when there are no official duties to hold Mr. Fuller bute.

TRAVELERS HITHER AND YON ABOUT THE GLOBE MAKE a list without end. Mrs. William Emerson Barrett forsakes Boston to spend late winter and early spring in the Golden State, and proceeds to California by the roundabout route, South to Central America and through the canal. She is already on voyage and has for her companion her daughter, Mrs. Edward Walton (Ruth Barrett) of Baltimore. Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Conant follow the sunshine trail south in their trusty motor, zuzagging about from one interesting city to another until they are settled in St. Petersburg to await spring's arrival

DOING THE SPANISH MAIN IN MODERN FASHION FILLS very comfortably a travel interlude several smart and highly placed Bostonians has arranged in their winter's schedule. A steamship of the Great White Fleet, the Ulivers, ploughs a leisurely way southward to nose in and out of palm-fringed ports with a company aboard that includes Maj-Gen. Preston Kingston Brown and Mrs. Brown, Mr and Mrs. Albert C. Burrage and Mrs. Burrage, and former Gov. Channing Cox and Mrs. Cox. There aren't so very many spots on the big round earth remaining unknown to these half dozen, who are much traveled.

BUT IT WELL MAY BE THAT THE TITIVES INTRODUCES them to new scenes, since she includes on her itinerary of nearly a month's cruising Cuba and Jamaica, British and Spanish Honduras and Guatemala, a mixture of West Indian and Central American vistas sure to conjure up the romantic days of a dead [illegible] buccaneers roved the Spanish Main and life was not nearly so safe and serene there as travelers of today luxuriously encounter it. The Bowens, the Cowes and the Barrances belong to the set sufficiently leisured and comfortable to range the world in search of sunshine and thus turn backs on Boston's January vagaries of climate.

THE DAVENPORT BROWNS, HAVING DONE THE VERY properly brilliant thing by their debutante daughter Miss Marie Davenport in town all winter, have gone and run away after bird-way to the West Indies on a voyage of rest and recuperation from the everlasting round of boon festivities. They've traveled everywhere about the civilized world, have the Browns, who belong to the cosmopolitan set that is as much at home in Florence as Palm Beach and London Bleaders as in aristocratic Boston environments. Their present journey is done in the popular cruise fashion, all about the West Indies and over the turquoise seas down near the Equator.

DR SARAH LLLEN PALMER JOINS THE TRAVELING SET that is doing the Spanish Main and adjacent bright blue seas and tropical [illegible] is cruising in the gaily colorful way the travel-bug has decreed for present-day voyagers de luxe. Something about [illegible] will be aired by Dr Palmer in her delightful fashion before she returns to town for the series of lectures she puts on [illegible] March.

DR. PALMER NOW GOES TO VISIT NEW SPAIN TO BE SURE, but her illustrated lectures are of Old Spain, its cathedrals, its painters and its generally fascinating atmosphere. Two of Dr Palmer's talks, which are beautifully illustrated, are at the Museum of Fine Arts, and the first, March 6, is at the Hotel Vendome, and all three will have the interesting sponsorship and attendance always associated with her lecture appearances.

CERTAIN SOCIAL LIGHTS WILL BE ABOARD THE CONTE BIANCAMANO when she puts her nose toward the open sea and heads for the Mediterranean Saturday. A semi-cruise is the plan of this liner, which will make a stop at Algiers and other Mediterranean ports not usually on her sailings. Mrs. Joshua B. Holden of Lime st is a passenger aboard the steamship, in company with her daughter Miss Mary Holden. Mr and Mrs John B. Swift, Jr., of Manchester, and Mr. and Mrs. Talbot Aldrich are Conte Biancamano passengers

MIAMI BEACH, WASHED BY THE SPARKLING WATERS OF sky-blue Biscayne bay and the glinting Atlantic, is the winter rendezvous of Mrs. Richard Pinsdright Burton of Brookline and Cohasset, who has gone thither to live in the Florida sunshine with her daughter, Mrs. Elmer Beattie of Toronto. Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Thayer, with a summer home at Marion and a winter apartment at the Hotel Sheraton, have started Westward to spend some weeks in California, a usual procedure of theirs when the breeze from the Basin blows briskly down Bay State way.

HONORS ON THE SHINING BLADES FALL TO THE LOT OF talented little Miss Polly Blodgett, pride and joy of the Jared Blodgett household. As one of the tiny members of Boston Skating Club that does the Ice Carnival next Wednesday at the Arena she performs as well she merits a solo part and will be the center of attraction all her small self in the Elizabeth Peabody House benefit. Those who recognize merit on the ice see in little Miss Polly another Theresa Weld Blanchard or Maribel Vinson in another dozen years.

Childhood Problems Stressed by Expert

"IRREGULAR eating habits, formed in childhood, often develop into abnormal appetites, intoxication and the drug habit in adult life," asserted Frederick C. Smith, Harvard graduate instructor. He spoke on child training before 500 delegates from 65 clubs throughout the State at the conference of workers directed by its chairman, Mrs. David C. Nickerson, at the Lake Bolero.

"This is no wild exaggeration," the speaker continued; it has been proven by years of exhaustive study by experts. Irregular sleeping habits help make irresponsible individuals and vagrants.

Mrs. David B. Nickerson

"I believe that a child's attitude ideals and habits are far more important to his success in life than even superior brain power. And you women have the key to the whole situation because you, who are closest to your children, can help them realize their chief interests. They themselves must choose a vocation, for one forced upon them from without themselves will not work."

Twenty-four questions were asked by the instructor to reveal to parents how much or how little they really know about the vital facts affecting the futures of their children.

JUDGE BY THEIR TALK

"Answer these honestly and you have a working basis on which to guide your child for his best vocation. This sort of analysis can be made only in the home, and any other kind offered as expert is only an imposition," the speaker said.

He stressed the importance of knowing whom the adolescent boy and girl "runs around with" and of using good language in the home

"After all," he said, "people are judged by how they talk, for the manner of speaking indicates the mode of thought. Smith concluded.

"My faith in some individuals who have been ordered deported and whom I wanted to give another chance in America, has been justified time and again." Miss Anna C. Tillinghast, U. S. commissioner of immigration, told the Melrose Highlands Woman's Club

CHILDREN'S CHORUS SINGS

Mrs. Tillinghast explained her work and recounted several interesting life stories of aliens who have come under her care

"Our aim has always been to see that arriving aliens reach their destinations without exploitation, difficulty or undue hardship," she said, "and my work grows more fascinating as time goes on."

Singers from the children's chorus of the Lancaster Theater delighted the club with familiar melodies that brought many encores. A sextet, directed by Mrs. Sallie Frise gave the program which was arranged by Mrs. Edward C. Amazeen.

STOP THIS CRIMINAL

OF all the culprits who ply the trade of crime, the arsonist is to be most despised. His victims have been legion. To gain dishonest dollars for himself the arsonist will sacrifice the life of others and imperil property of untold value.

But the hand of the law is fairly certain now to seize this criminal. Detection and punishment have been brought to such a high percentage of success that he has small chance of escape. The Arson Squad generally gets its man!

The Stock Fire Insurance companies, through the National Board of Fire Underwriters and its Arson Committee, wage relentless war against the arsonist.

Squads of trained men work quietly and without noise or show, in co-operation with legal authorities, in every state of the Union, to guard the people of America against this crime of arson and the practice of incendiarism by pyromaniacs and other irresponsible persons.

The results have been gratifying, and will be even more so when the American people realize the menace and cost of incendiary fires.

This is but one of many measures employed by the Stock Fire Insurance companies in the elimination of fire hazards —the conservation of life and property. The Arson Squad works constantly with police, fire marshals, fire departments and other officials.

"The Crime of Crimes," an interesting booklet on arson and incendiarism, may be had upon request to

Tallulah Bankhead to Be Wed in London

Berlin, Jan. 24 (INS)—Count Boccari, wealthy Italian nobleman, who is engaged to Miss Tallulah Bankhead, the American actress, told International News Service today he and the beautiful American girl would be married in London next month.

"We intend to be married in London within two or three weeks," said Count Boccari, "Miss Bankhead happens to be in Berlin herself at present. Neither of us expects to remain more than a few days. Miss Bankhead came here to have her voice tested for a British talking picture production."

La Follette in Marble

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—A nine foot marble statue of the late Robert La Follette, to be placed in the Hall of Fame at Washington, was brought to this country on the liner Paris.

BACKS LOWER RATES FOR HUB

Washington, Jan. 24—Proof that all northern New Englanders do not share the cynical view of Senator Moses toward the port of Boston and its desires, was seen today in the following telegram received from Henry F. Merrill of Portland:

State of Maine council of New England council and maritime bureau of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, hope the petition of Boston Maritime Association now pending before shipping board seeking ocean rates from Boston and Portland in shipping board vessels two cents less than from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and United Kingdom and Continental European ports, will be granted, because it will give New England industries the advantage of lower ocean rates they are entitled to on account of relatively shorter ocean distances. Will appreciate your assistance.

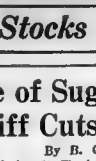
Battle of Sugar Bowl On; Tariff Cuts, Raises Urged

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Jan. 24—The battle of the sugar bowl is on.

Fifty witnesses are appearing in Washington this week before the Ways and Means Committee's hearings into the tariff on sugar.

Home beet and cane growers demand an increased, certain other interests oppose any change whatsoever, while Cuban interests would like to have their product come in free instead of being given a preferential rate of 126 as compared with the regular rate of 2.20c a pound.



B. C. Forbes

That Cuban sugar will be allowed in freely is most unlikely—in fact, entirely out of the question, according to those in intimate touch with what's what. If any sugar tariff changes are made they are certain to be in the upward direction. It may be, however, that the committee will try to leave things exactly as they are, except that legislation may be recommended placing a limit upon duty-free imports from the Philippines.

Democrats interested in sugar upon President Hoover's support in their demands that they be given sufficient protection to enable them to withdraw from the status of a minor industry to a big, strong, healthy industry, thus enabling these United States to appear in a fair time toward the self-supporting stage sugar-wise.

But serious objections to this are raised. Higher tariff levies, it is claimed would benefit the Philippines, Porto Rico and Hawaii far more than domestic producers and would increase the already plentiful total sugar bill ridiculously more than the amount which would actually go to the pockets of home producers.

Also, it is emphasized that Cuba's economic recovery as her production was brought about at the most urgent behest of the United States during the World War and that therefore, it would be entirely unfair for us to take any action which would add to conditions in Cuba worse than they already are. Overproduction has been so serious that practically all planting has been sustained since the war, and even without additional tariff obstacles it is inevitable that a great many of the smaller and weaker Cuban growers suffer annihilation.

Since sugar was discussed in this column several weeks ago, letters have poured in, indicating that interest in the subject is keen and widespread. One large manufacturer whose product is not associated in the slightest in the public's mind with sugar, tells me that before the wishes of domestic growers granted, his profits would be cut down fully one-and-a-quarter million dollars a year and that, because of the fixed price at which the product is sold, it would be impossible to recover this loss.

On the other hand, domestic growers paint impressive pictures of what could be and in their judgment, should be done to build up sugar growing were what they call "proper" protection afforded. Few other steps could be taken by the United States Government, they contend, which would do "if as much to provide farm relief in various States. In addition to stimulating beet growing enormously, they claim that cane growing would be developed rapidly and successfully, especially in Louisiana and Florida, wherever lands are now being leased in fields and plants.

Reginald Dykers, vice-president and general manager of the Action Sugar Cane League, writes in part in reference to a recent statement in this column by H. Hilke, Jr.

Mr. Pike's statements as to Hawaii and Porto Rico reaping the greatest return from an increased tariff fall to the ground in the face of the fact they have unfortunately reached the limit of their production, whereas in the mainland United States the farmers have an almost limitless opportunity to put land into beets and cane, now unused land, but some of it barren as they are now producing a plus wheat on, with all the abstract trouble thereof. McNary-Haugenism, etc. It seems quite long for us to advocate the transfer income of the wheat land to beet and cane, as long as there is senormous home market for our, instead of continuing to mi surplus wheat. But sugar has thriving growing from the status of a minor industry to a big, strong, healthy industry, thus enabling these United States to appear in a fair time toward the self-supporting stage sugar-wise.

From another letter, fro Minnesota:

"Mexican labor is indispensable to the success of sugar bi culture, because no other available labor will weed and cultivate beets —a hard and backbreaking job. The Mexicans come here in the spring and return in the fall. They are peaceable and hardworking. They take no mea jobs away, for no white man an be hired to do what they do Without them the entire sugar beet industry, so beneficial to Minnesota farms, would have to be abandoned."

So you see, the sugar bwl has many sides.

BEACON OIL IS TO LIST MORE SHARES

At the time of the announcement of Standard Oil of New Jersey's offer to exchange its stock for common stock of the Beacon Oil Co., it was stated by the directors of the latter company that they had authorized sale of 350,000 shares of unissued common stock to the New Jersey company. Application to list the additional stock on the New York Stock Exchange reveals that the Standard Oil of New Jersey paid $19 10 per share for the stock. This compares with present market of 19¼ and recent high of 28¾.

Beacon Oil is applying for authority to list 450,000 additional shares in all, the other 100,000 having been sold at $15 per share to Clifford M. Leonard, chairman of the board, pursuant to the terms of an option dated Dec. 13, 1927.

Sale of the 450,000 shares of stock will therefore net the company $8,185,000. Proceeds will be utilized to pay off real estate mortgages and purchase money obligations and to increase marketing facilities and working capital. On November 30, last, real estate mortgages and purchase money obligations totalled $3,200,145.

Beacon Oil on November 30, last, owned 77 bulk distributing stations with a total storage capacity of approximately 320,000 barrels. It owned or leased 304 service stations and leased to retail distributors 4458 pumps.

In 11 months to November 30, company spent $1,406,653 for acquisition of new properties. Sales of products for the 12 months ended November 30 1928, follow:

Product	Eleven months ended 1927 Nov. 30, 24 Gallons	Gallons
Gasoline	90,401,643	107,882,049
Fuel Oil	73,174,760	82,776,669
Gas oil	33,368,801	46,990,415
Furnace oil	6,034,296	4,030,885
Asphalt	10,852,504	14,060,732

For the 11 months ended Nov. 30, 1928, Beacon Oil earned net profit after depreciating, taxes, etc., of $1,452,167. Deducting preferred dividends of $189,935, there was available for the common, $1,322,232, equal to $1 40 a share on 947,543 shares compared with 18 cents a share in the full 1927 year on 914,000 common shares.

STRAUS FORMS INVESTMENT TRUST

S W Straus & Co have formed an investment trust to be known as the S. W. Straus Investing Corp with a capitalization of $10,000,000 consisting of 200,000 shares 6 per cent cumulative preferred, par value $50, and 300,000 shares no-par common.

Public offering of 100,000 unit certificates is made today, the units representing one share preferred and one half share common, at $52 the offering is made by S. W Straus & Co.

While the principal purpose for which the S W Straus Investing Corp. is organized is to engage in construction loans, the articles of incorporation filed in Delaware permit such other activities as will assure continual employment of its capital.

The board of directors consists of a number of senior officers of S. W. Straus & Co in addition to Walter Shober, Jacob Leitner and Edward L. Love.

Comm. Investment Earnings Revealed

Commercial Investment Trust Corp., one of country's largest finance companies, purchased $2o2,163,895 bills and accounts during 1928, a record volume and comparing with $1o8,271,263 in 1927. Net profit in 1928 of $5,278,2o3 was equal after preferred dividends to $9.71 a share on the 46o,132 shares of common stock, the average number outstanding during the year. In 1927 net income was $3,6o3,292 or $4.89 a share on 443,1oo shares the average outstanding during that year.

As of Dec 31, 1928, current assets totaled $139,733,397 and current liabilities $73,6o6,o39.

In his report to stockholders, Henry Ittleson, president of Commercial Investment Trust Corp., explained that the company had deferred, for future operations, discounts collected in advance, amounting to $4,684,192. All determinable or known losses have been written off so that a reserve of $2,728,345, for losses and contingencies, stands intact to provide the company against possible future losses and unforeseen contingencies.

STEEL LOWER IN WALL ST. REACTION

By W. S. COUSINS.

New York, Jan. 24—With few exceptions the active industrials were carried to a lower level of prices at the beginning of trading today by the resumption of the profit-taking and short selling which closed yesterday's session of the market.

A few of the high-priced specialties were shunted along to higher levels by the pools and professionals but these were in the minority and the market as a whole displayed the usual Thursday "reservation."

Canadian Pacific's brilliant 6 point jump to 254¾, the highest in the history of that stock, was the feature of the rails.

CANADIAN RIGHTS.

Canadian Pacific managers are considering a plan to distribute valuable rights and concessions to shareholders according to reports in Wall st., and the stock is being bought by Canadian and British investors. New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio and Southern Pacific were active and strong.

United States Steel again led the full weight of profit-taking and professional selling. The stock lost 2 points in the first half-hour, and at 183¾ was down over 6 points from the high of the week.

Studebaker, American Can, St. Joseph Lead and other aggressive leaders of the latest bull movement, were pounded down 2 to 5 points from the peak prices of the week. The coppers lost ground, as well as the oils and specialties.

WORRY OVER MONEY.

Wall street had two things to worry about; first, the reserve bank rediscount rate, which directors of the bank may raise another notch at today's meeting; second, the weekly report on brokers loans after the close, which is quite likely to show a big increase in speculative borrowing. This is the usual Thursday effect, frequently causing a reaction in the market.

National Cash Register, Johns Manville and other high-priced specialties had momentum enough from yesterday's closing dash to carry them to sluthly higher prices before running into very much selling.

Central Alloy Steel, and the new "discovery" stocks, including the Northern Ore and Rio Grande, sold up about a point or two on the strength of optimistic reports of findings of oil, copper, etc., on their reserves. Savage Arms sold into new high ground for the current move.

Reaction spread to other listed and unlisted market, and prices of the Curb specialties were down from 2 to 3 points. The commodity markets were irregular, with cotton up 2 to 10 points and wheat and corn fractionally lower.

Declines Outnumber Gains on N. Y. Curb

New York, Jan. 24 (INS)—Declines were more numerous than advances in the curb market today. Fox Theaters A lost 1¼ to 2. Douglas Aircraft was down ¼ at 28½; Newmont Mining down ¼ at 104½, and General Baking B down ¼ at 9¾.

Produce Exchange Pleased With First Month in Stocks

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Jan. 24—The new interest in common stocks as long-term investments, intensified by the widespread desire to speculate, has overtaxed the machinery of the existing stock exchanges of the country. Accordingly, all the exchanges are considering ways and means of speeding mechanical facilities and enlarging the membership. Outside exchanges have also been looking enviously at the stock business, and the New York Produce Exchange recently plunged in adding a security department, which has been in operation one full month.

Colonel William Beatty, president of the New York Produce Exchange, at the end of the first month of the new department, finds the new department was worth, not in practice and what was its economic necessity for the departure from the traditional role of the exchange.

"The board of managers of the New York Produce Exchange," Mr. Beatty told me, "are highly gratified with the volume of business transacted since the opening of our new securities department on December 19. New securities are being made available for trading each week, and it is confidently expected that there will be a large trade on this exchange in stocks and bonds in the very near future."

More than 150 members of the Produce Exchange are also members of the New York Stock Exchange. There is no direct competition between the two boards. The Produce Exchange deals in no stocks listed either on the New York Stock Exchange or on the board of its little ward, the New York Curb Market. The market draws most of its business from the unlisted or over the counter market.

As for reasons for entering security trading, Mr. Beatty said: "We were encouraged that there is a large number of attractive securities not now traded in on any other exchange in New York city, but for which the public also leading bankers, brokers and security holders of the country, as well as the Attorney-General of New York, desired a public exchange market so that sales and bids and offers would be immediately reported by a ticker service and officially distributed through the public press.

"The large increase in the volume of trade recorded on the new securities exchanges of the United States the past two years suggested certain inherent factors at work. It seems increasingly sure that while single industries may fluctuate in their sales and Lawyers have lately been appearing in special demand among corporations for high executive positions. An outstanding New England example of 1929 was the election of Vice-Pres. E. G. The list follows: Cornelius Kelly, president of the Anaconda Copper Company; Henry C. Alexander, president of the Brooklyn Eastern Terminal Company; Frederick J. Fisher, vice-president, General Motors; George Macdonald, president of the Nassau-Suffolk Lighting Company.

John J. Bernet, president of the Erie railroad; Joseph J. Jacobs, vice-president the Equitable Trust Company; Admiral William S. Benson, Lieut.-Gen. Edward S. Logan, Boston; Thomas E. Murray, vice-president of the New York Edison Company.

Joseph P. Grace, president of the W. R. Grace Company, New York; Amedeo P. Giannini, banker, San Francisco; D. W. Turohey, banker, Spokane; Adrian A. Iselin, New York; John K. Mohler, New York; William D. Guthrie, attorney, New York, Frank D. Comerford, president of the New England Power Company.

The Grand Cross of the Order of Malta was conferred on James A. Farrell, chairman of the board, United States Steel Company, Morgan J. O'Brien, New York.

The new knights have been elected members of the American Chapter of the Order, it was announced.

Americans who have been decorated previously with the Grand Cross of the order include: James J. Phelan, Nicholas Brady, New York, who is a papal duke; John D. Ryan, chairman of the board of Anaconda Copper Company; Edward L. Hearn, American representative of the Knights of Columbus in Rome, who is a papal count; John J. Raskob, Wilmington, Del.

The Knights of Malta trace their origin back to 1048, when the order first functioned under the leadership of Blessed Gerard de Martigues of Provence, as hospital workers ministering to pilgrims to the Holy Land. From this activity the order got its original title of Friars of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem, commonly shortened in contemporary writings to "Hospitallers." During the crusades the order figured prominently in the battles between cross and crescent. In modern times its activities have been chiefly along charitable lines. The American Chapter is unique in that it is the only one which extends membership to laymen not of noble lineage.

Reassuring on employment is the optimistic note sounded by a great New England leader, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, at the Boston Chamber of Commerce today. Pres. Sloan says "We in General Motors thoroughly believe that there are possibilities for the future, that have not in any sense been capitalized. We believe that we shall be able not only to maintain but to better our contribution in the form of employment of labor and in consumption of materials

Marquis of Reading, elected a director of Prudential Investors, the securities of which were put on sale by the Boston Stock Exchange house this week, was formerly Sir Rufus Isaacs. He is the first Jew to become a marquis, this is the second title in the British peerage. Even the great Benjamin Disraeli, Prime Minister and novelist, was only Earl of Beaconsfield. The Marquis of Reading, first Lord Reading, won initial distinction as a lawyer. He was raised to the peerage when he became Lord Chief Justice of England. His services as Ambassador to the United States won him considerable favor

Total production of automobiles and trucks in 1929 for the United States and Canada is estimated at 5,600,000 by the Brookmire Economic Service, Inc. Manufacturers' announced schedules call for a record production of 7,000,000 units, a total which probably will not be reached, although present indications are that 1929 will achieve a new high record. The economists estimate that replacements in 1929 will amount to 2,700,000 cars, new users 2,000,000 and that exports, stimulated by new models and lower prices, may reach 700,000. They expect 1929 to be a year of great competition among producers. New models at old or lower prices, easy payment terms, and increasing costs of materials, will make it hard for many of the weaker companies to exist. This year is expected to see the field of producers narrowed through mergers and consolidations and even failures. This year will be the best year on record, except, perhaps, for aggregate profits, according to the economists

FRENCH LOAN ANNOUNCED

Paris, Jan 24 (AP)—The sinking fund committee will issue a loan of from six to seven billion francs at the end of February bearing interest at 4½ per cent. The operation will be in the nature of both conversion and consolidation.

One object of the loan will be to convert the 2,000,000,000 franc loan secured on the receipts of the tobacco monopoly. This loan was issued in 1926 at a high rate of interest. The new loan will also be used to consolidate national defense issues.

The price of the new loan has not been fixed, but is expected to be such as to represent a yield of 4½ per cent. The operation will involve no money payment, being merely an exchange of securities. The operation is expected to have an effect on the market, however, by sending down the price of money. It is also claimed that the new loan will represent considerable economy, both to the sinking fund committee and the treasury, and will accelerate amortization of the public debt.

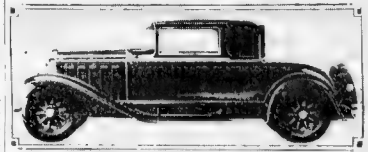
For the corresponding six months of 1927 net income was $3,123,304, or $3.08 a share.

OAKLAND'S NEW COUPE



ON DISPLAY IN HUB

This new Oakland All-American six coupe is one of the many new models on display in Oakland dealers' showrooms in Greater Boston.

Reserve banks, however, have been powerless to curb entrance of non-bank funds to the New York money market. High rates prevailed here for some months and foreigners have put about $4,000,000,000 additional money to work in the New York market this past year. Flow of such funds from abroad has naturally weakened foreign exchanges, and to some extent has led to a situation calling for gold imports. How large such a movement may become is unpredictable, but certainly reserve banks can do nothing to increase the movement and thus weaken the position of foreign central banks.

With the gold import point reached for sterling, the policy of Bank of England will become an increasingly important factor in our domestic market. London may protect itself by raising its bank rate and general interest levels, thus possibly cutting off one source of credit, for American speculative markets. Under the circumstances, it is clear federal reserve policy must adjust itself more than was anticipated to an international, rather than purely domestic, situation.

In Boston the quick call rate is still 6 per cent. Time money is 6 per cent to 6½ per cent. Commercial paper is 5½ per cent to 5¾ per cent.

In New York call money opened at 6 per cent. Time money is 7½ per cent to 7¾ per cent. Commercial paper is 5¾ per cent to 5½ per cent.

Zimmerman Elected Thompson Successor

Directors of Public Service Corporation of New Jersey have authorized the issuance of not less than 240,330 shares of the corporation's common stock. Holders of common and 8 per cent cumulative preferred stock of the corporation of record Jan 31, 1929, were given the right to subscribe at $65 per share on the bases of one share for each 20 shares of common or 8 per cent preferred owned, subscription payable in full March 30, 1929.

A quarterly dividend of 65 cents was declared on the common stock and the regular dividends on the 8 and 7 per cent and 5½ cumulative preferred stock, payable March 30, 1929, to stockholders of record March 1, 1929. Also regular monthly dividends for February and March were declared on the 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock. John E. Zimmerman was elected a director of the corporation in place of Arthur W. Thompson, whose resignation was received and accepted. Mr. Zimmerman was also elected to the executive committee and to the boards of the various underlying companies.

NEW PONTIAC ON DISPLAY IN HUB

The new Pontiac Big Six, now on display at the New England Oakland Pontiac Co's showrooms at 655 Beacon st., Back Bay, embodies improvements which insure it as a [illegible] than that of preceding models of the Pontiac Six line according to Dwight Hering, general [illegible] and vice president of the Oakland Motor Car Co.

In a statement made public today Hersey declared:

"While only rounding out its third anniversary, the Pontiac Six enters upon its fourth year a definitely established volume leader. In this position, officials of the Oakland Motor Car Co. are confident it will more firmly entrench itself by reason of the extraordinary value evident in this car for 1929.

"All body lines are new, the line includes a two-door sedan, four-door sedan, coupe, sport roadster with folding [illegible] seat, sport phaeton, convertible cabriolet with folding [illegible] seat, and a landau bit sedan. The last two types are innovations in the Pontiac line and have the appearance of custom built bodies.

"Features contributing to the performance of the new car are a larger and more powerful engine; low counter weighted crankshaft, new harmonic balancer, new internal self energizing brakes; new rear axle; new transmission, larger carburetor, intake manifold and valves; wider springs with new shackles, self-adjusting for wear; increased valve lift, and new Hotchkiss drive."

TRAVEL GUIDES HOSTS AT DINNER

Moose, salmon and other tempting foods from New Brunswick, were served to more than 150 sport enthusiasts who were guests at a dinner of the New Brunswick Guides Association, at Copley Plaza Hotel. The dinner was given in the style of an out-of-doors luncheon in a typical New Brunswick Hunting Camp.

Billie Griffin, president of the association, welcomed New Eng land sport enthusiasts to New Brunswick. He contributed one of the features of the event by giving the moose call, as used by hunters of the north to lure this giant of the woods.

Lieut. Gov. the Honorable R. McLean, was guest of honor at the dinner and responded on behalf of the province. Among the speakers were Lieutenant-Governor William S. Newman, Major Charles Hard ing, representing Mayor Nichols ex-Mayor James M. Curley, and L. P. D. Tilley, president of the New Brunswick executive council. The Hon C. D. Richards, minister of lands and mines, presided

Greatest demonstrations in recent weeks have been in issues which possess undoubted merit and enjoy broad support. So long as the general rank and file of speculators maintain their operations principally in the high grade issues, there will be little danger of a precipitate decline. CONSUMPTION OF COPPER

Most Connecticut brass and copper mills did more business in 1928, than ever before, and some say 1929 will be still bigger. Further large demand is expected from industries that have been outstanding, such as electrical radio, automobile and building. New uses of brass and copper alloys are expected to continue to increase rapidly.

METROPOLITAN POLICE GIVEN $100 RAISE

Increases in salaries for the metropolitan district commission police, State House elevator operators, guards and other State employes have been approved by Governor Allen and the Executive Council. The increases are effective June 1.

The Metropolitan patrolmen receive an increase of $100 both in their minimum and maximum salaries, making it $1700 minimum and $2100 maximum, and uniforms. There are 156 patrolmen thus benefitted, as well as 16 sergeants whose minimum will be $2300 and maximum $2400, including uniforms.

The motor vehicle examiners and investigators also get increases of varying amounts, while State House guards and elevator operators get $60 increases in both minimum and maximum figures.

Frank H. Putnam, director of personnel and standardization, explains that after 14 months of operation of the classification adopted November 2, 1927, actual experience has shown the necessity of a few changes in this classification.

Fourteen new classes also are established, among them being that of assistant to registrar of motor vehicles, with a minimum of $3600 and a maximum of $4380.

K. OF C. TO HOLD BALL AT ELKS' ON MONDAY

Youngman, Mayor Nichols, ex-Mayor Curley will be on hand to aid the South Boston Council in its endeavor to raise funds for the poor and needy of the district. The entire proceeds of the ball are devoted to this purpose, and in the past the members have been able to realize a substantial sum for their charitable activities. The prospects are that this year's receipts will eclipse those of all other years.

There will be dancing from 8 to 12, with music being furnished by O'Leary's Irish Minstrels.

Train Kills Woman at South Station

Unable to recover her balance in the press of a commuting crowd at South Station, Mrs. Ellsworth Leach, 60, of 91 Pleasant st, Stoughton, fell beneath the wheels of a moving train and was killed. Mrs. Leach was trying to board the Stoughton train at Track 11 She was carried forward with the surge of the crowd as the train approached the bumper. The train made a preliminary stop before it backed in to the bumper. The crowd was pressing forward all the while and as Mrs Leach tried to swing aboard the step of the last car she lost her balance, and plunged beneath the wheels.

Acid Stomach

Excess acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods never continue to suffer, when you know how quickly, how pleasantly this premier method acts. Please let it show you—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any druestore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

1000 RADIO MEN ENTERTAINED BY HUB FIRMS

More than 1000 radio dealers from all parts of New England found the grand ballroom of the Hotel Statler transformed into a banquet hall when they gathered there as guests of the F. D. Pitts Co. and Stern & Co., Inc., distributors of Grigsby-Grunow Majestic radio receivers.

Just as the diners were sitting down their attention was brought to a focus on the real purpose of their presence when the curtain on the ballroom stage was slowly drawn revealing in lavish setting the new 1929 Majestic all-electric radio models.

At a glance it was apparent that the message of Majestic for 1929 strongly emphasized the trend toward harmonious and beautiful designs in radio furniture.

Herbert E. (Ed.) Young, general sales manager, in the rule of toastmaster, extended a cordial welcome to the assemblage on behalf of the Grigsby-Grunow Company, manufacturers of the Majestic line, and then introduced Jerome Rutherford, New England representative of that company. He was followed by Frank D. Pitts, president of the F. D. Pitts Co., and Mr. Frank G. Macomber, manager of Stern & Co., Inc., who briefly outlined plans for merchandising Majestics on a scale expected to dwarf the more than $6,000,000 sales reached in this territory in the year just closed.

James Devins, sales promotion manager, and Edward H. McCarthy, New York sales representative, also had special messages of interest to the trade.

An elaborate program of entertainment was enjoyed by all.

Reduce Penalty for Dollar Line Skipper

Capt. Ralph W. C. Smith, pilot on the Dollar Line steamship President Garfield when she sank the steamer Kershaw in Vineyard Sound last May 31, whose license was suspended for one year and ordered from this finding by the supervising inspector, the penalty has now been modified and the suspension of the license is reduced to two months.

Capt. E. S. Brooks, commander of the vessel at whose house also was suspended for one year by the board of inspectors, has appealed for modification of the penalty, but the hearing in his case has not yet been held.

Harvard Chef Fined

Following a plea of guilty in Dual District Court, East Cambridge, to charges of keeping and exposing liquor for sale and the illegal manufacture of liquor, Gustaf Sundelof of the Pi Eta Club of Harvard University students, located at 1 Winthrop sq., was fined $50 on each of the charges by Judge Joseph F. Donovan.

THEODORE DREISER

Love

At last, a man has told the truth about love. He has done it in a novel which is absolutely honest.

Honest about what attracts man to woman, what goes on in the man's mind while he loves, what when he is unfaithful to his love. Honest to an extent that no man ever before has been even in a talk with his closest friend.

Only a man who had the rugged sort of courage that could survive the suppression of a novel like "Sister Carrie" and forge on undaunted to the fame that came with "An American Tragedy" could have done it.

The novel is called "This Madness," and in it Theodore Dreiser reveals the impulses and the results of love with a candor that will surprise you, may shock you, but will so impress you that you'll never forget it.

"This Madness" begins (as a serial) in February Cosmopolitan which is now on sale.

Death of Tex Killed Comeback of Jack

By JACK DEMPSEY

If Tex Rickard had lived, the chances are that I would have climbed through the ropes again in September, for the last fight of my career and with that battle marking Tex Rickard's farewell as a fistic promoter.

But Tex has gone from us. All things have changed. The secret pact that we had made ended with his tragic passing.

PROOF of how he felt about my determination is that he dealt me out of the picture in 1928. He knew I meant what I said about quitting, never tried to coax me back—until after the Tunney-Heeney financial flop last July, and then there was a change—a mighty one in Tex and his ideals concerning my future.

That venture was the first real failure of Tex Rickard's promotional life. It hit him a jolt, one much harder than he ever was willing to concede. The money loss meant nothing.

"You're going to fight again," Tex insisted, looking me squarely in the eye. "You've got to fight again—for my sake." His manner was tense—dramatic.

Then here he went on. "I'm tired of this promoting thing. If that show (Tunney and Heeney) had gone over I might be announcing my own retirement right now.

"But it was a bust, and I'm not quitting this business with a failure as my finish. Understand? I've got to put on another million-dollar show before I quit. And with you in one corner, I can do it."

I started to reiterate that I was through; that I didn't care to keep on until I ran the risk of getting "punch drunk." Tex, impatient, broke in on me.

"ANOTHER dozen fights won't make you 'punch drunk' and all I'm asking is that you fight one more for me next year (1929). You've got to do it."

"A fellow's got to slow down some time or another—and I'm going to do that as soon as I can put on another million dollar show and shut up those fellows who are kidding me about the Tunney-Heeney bloomer."

Tex was never a sustained talker. He would go along for a paragraph or two and pause and make you think he was all through, but I never didn't interrupt he would pick up the story and go on. So I said nothing. Tex chewed his cigar, looked out the window at the light sunshine and resumed.

"Remember telling me that I ought to do some playing; take a rest and get some fun out of my money? That's what I figured doing if my fight had been a success. It wasn't. I've got to put over another winner—then I can quit, and I tell you I want to quit.

Again Tex paused—then went on: "I've bought myself a home in Miami—yard and trees and flowers and the ocean and all that. I've got a yacht, and I've got the finest little wife and the most wonderful baby in the world.

"I want to spend my winters in Florida without worrying or working. I want to loaf and have some fun and enjoy my little family. That is do it while I'm in the game, so I'm planning to get out—but I tell you I won't get out until I've put over another million dollar show I've got to do that or I'll never be happy."

TEX kept hanging away on that subject—and tried to get me to promise I'd fight for him again in September, 1929. I kept saying "no" but Tex was insistent. So I finally compromised with

"Let me think it over and I'll let you know later."

During the fall of 1928, when much of my time was spent in and around New York, Tex brought up the subject repeatedly. He wanted a flat promise from me. I explained again and again how I felt about trying a "comeback," but Tex always tried to talk me down.

I'd tell him that perhaps the final bout among the 1929 contenders for Tunney's vacated crown would earn out a $1,000,000 gate. Tex would shake his head, then I'd hazard the guess that Tunney might change his mind and fight some more. But Tex would shake his head to that.

He offered me terms that were in the neighborhood of $600,000 if I'd sign up. I told him "No," then he said that if I didn't think he was liberal enough I could practically write my own contract.

He was willing to go to any business-like extreme to get the promise from me in the hope that by fighting again I might help stage that "one more million-dollar gate."

But I stood pat against it. The money end was attractive—tremendously so—but I'd rather pass up $10,000,000 than to go into a fight merely to get a loser's end.

I wasn't sure then—nor am I now—that I could make the grade for a winning battle against the best man in active harness today.

WHEN I was leaving for Los Angeles late in the fall to spend the holidays in my own town, I dropped around to say good-bye to Tex. Again he brought up the subject, but this time in a different, far more different way.

"I'm not talking to you now as Tex Rickard to Jack Dempsey," he said. "I'm talking as one pal in a tough spot to the only other feller in the world who can help him out. I want you to promise to fight for me again to fight next September (1929).

"Will you do that, Jack, and help me out so I can put on one big show as my windup and then quit the game and take it easy and just loaf and play around the rest of my life?"

Tex Rickard was actually pleading to me—as a pal—to help him out over one more gigantic pugilistic success so that his prestige would be regained. His ambition realized and the way made clear so that he could fade out of the hectic promotional picture and go into the glad, happy life in the companionship of his wife and baby.

"There was but one answer when Tex put it that way—and I made it when I said: "Okay, Tex, but I'm making the promise only conditionally. If the contenders can't draw you a million-dollar gate and if nobody else can do it, I'll do a comeback this year for you, provided that I can prove in a little preliminary training that I'm still good enough to have a chance to beat anybody—from Tunney down the line."

"Thanks, Jack," said Tex simply. He extended his hand, and so the pact was made. I was to fight anybody that Tex Rickard might name in September, 1929, provided no one had been able to draw a $1,000,000 gate up to that time—and provided I could get into fair fighting shape once more.

It was to have been absolutely the last fight of my career. If the gate had hit $1,000,000 I am sure it would have been Tex Rickard's last promotion.

EVEN if the bout had failed to draw a million, I am sure Tex, conceding then that million-dollar gate days are done, would have quit the racket.

He was wearying of it; wanted a rest; wanted home life and the companionship of the wife and child that he idolized. Both of us—Tex and I—were to pass out of the game together with that last fight.

Tex has gone—forever—from earthly things. The pact that was ours was broken by His death. My promise made to help out a pal automatically becomes void, and so, now, I am swinging back to that old resolve of mine, made that September night in Chicago

"I'm through as a ringman."

Great Relay Card at K. of C. Games on Garden Track

HARVARD, B. C., H. C. IN RACE

U. of N. H. Also in Fine Two-Mile Race; Dartmouth May Enter Team

An intercollegiate two-mile relay championship race with Harvard, Holy Cross, Boston College and the University of New Hampshire represented has been made an added feature of the annual William C. Prout Memorial games, which the Knights of Columbus conduct Saturday night at the Boston Garden.

Manager Jim Gaffney for the K of C also announced that there are so many races on the team program at the meeting that they make almost a set of games in themselves.

The two-mile relay race with four such teams taking part and possibly a Dartmouth team as well should prove most attractive on the big track at the Garden.

HARVARD FOUR GOOD

Harvard is known to have a great team with Jim Bird to fall back on, but Farrell, the Harvard coach, does not intend to run Bird in this contest. This is indication that the rest of the Crimson power must be worth while. It is the first time such a race has been attempted at the Prout games.

The other college relay races include Harvard against Holy Cross in varsity and freshman races at a mile. Boston College freshmen against the championship Newark preparatory school team. Brown against Bowdoin, Massachusetts Tech against the University of Maine, Northeastern against Colby, Boston University vs. Massachusetts Aggies, Boston College against a University of New Hampshire mile team and the Boston Athletic Association against the Brooklyn Columbus Club four.

MIDGETS RACE

Two scholastic races will also be inserted. That always popular race among the midget teams of English high, Boston Latin and Mechanic Arts high is included.

English high vs. Dorchester high vs. Boston Latin in a senior race will also be staged.

There will be one special race for K. of C. Council teams.

Tickets for the games have been put on sale at several down town offices and with Pravo Nurmi as the leading attraction are being snapped up.

The popular prices that prevail should help establish an indoor meet record attendance for Boston.

Maloney and O'Kelly Box Here Feb. 1

Con O'Kelly and Jim Maloney are to have it out again this time in the Boston Madison Square Garden on February 1. They met recently in New York. Jim was matched to box Al Delmont in Boston, but the Massachusetts board ordered the bout blue-penciled. O'Kelly meets George Cormas in Syracuse tomorrow night.

Knute Rockne, famous football coach, suffering from an attack of influenza at South Bend, Ind., cancelled an invitation to address the Boston City Club today.

Royalty Donate Cups for Lido-Venice Race

Programs were issued yesterday at the National Motor Boat Show at the Grand Central Palace for the international motor boat competitions to be held at Lido-Venice, Italy, from September 7 to 15. The prizes for the 12-liter boats under special regulations are offered by the King of Italy, and a cup for races among boats without limitations has been put up by the Crown Prince. There also will be cups offered by Mussolini and by Count Volpi di Misurata.

Tex Got Big Battle By Lucky Break

By JACK LAWRENCE

Copyright, 1929, by New York American, Inc., and Universal Service, Inc.

WAS it intuition or a blind break in the luck that sent Tex Rickard to Jack Johnson's wife instead of to the theater in which Jack was playing on that distant Saturday night when the promoter landed in Pittsburgh?

It was a lucky break for Tex.

Jack Johnson's white wife dominated his every move.

She even told him what he was to wear when he dressed to go out. He was a childish, carefree kid, as he is to this day. As Red Norfolk once said of him:

"He ain't got no sense but he's sho' got music in 'at left hand."

JOHNSON had ring sense. Out of the ring he was almost anybody's fool, but in it he was the craftiest of magicians. He has been likened to Hans Wagner, the famous Pittsburgh shortstop, for his ability to cover ground without showing any speed.

It is said that when he was six months old he used to reach for his bottle with his left hand, knowing even then the fallacy of leading with a right.

When Tex Rickard entered that Pittsburgh boarding house and found the colored boxer's white wife there alone he handed her a glib line of conversation.

He promised her a genuine seal skin coat if she could persuade her husband to fight for him. It was a Saturday night and Johnson was leaving immediately after the show for New York. Mrs. Johnson, when she heard Rickard's proposition about the coat, simply filled a fountain pen and said:

"Just go out and bring that onion to me!"

Rickard found Johnson in his dressing room at the theater.

JACK greeted him with a wide grin that no fist was ever able to dim.

"Does I wanna fight?" he said. "Sho I wants to fight, but I can't see in to get nobody to give me any real money fo' fightin'. Now if some guy should come along and say 'Jack, here's a couple gran' fo' yo'self if you'll stick 'at ol' left hand out,' I'd O. K. But it looks to me, Mista Rickard, like them guys sin' runnin' aroun' so frequent now days."

Tex Rickard dug a long, lean paw into his trouser pocket and brought out a golden roll of bills. Peeling off two $1000 notes he laid them on the fighter's dressing table. On top of them he laid an equally crisp $500 bill.

That nearly stopped the show.

But even with all that money within easy reach Jack Johnson wouldn't come to any definite agreement until he had obtained the consent of his white wife.

He was afraid of that dominating hand in the boarding house round the corner. But Tex Rickard want t. Tex and Jack Johnson and his wife left that night for New York and by the time they reached Jersey City the giant negro was signed and delivered. Two days later Rickard sent Mrs. Johnson a "realskin" coat for which he paid $75.

ON the journey from Pittsburgh to New York Tex Rickard discovered that Jack Johnson wasn't so dumb. He found that Jack knew a lot about the negotiations that had been going on in connection with the proposed fight.

Johnson told him that the bid scheduled to be accepted was an offer of $100,000, a staggering sum for a prize fight in those days.

"Mista Rickard," said Johnson "if yo' all take my advice and let dis bid go in for $110,000 on the line in cash it's mah guess you'll get at fight. But don't forget about the cash end of it."

With interest in the fight at fever heat, the bids of the various promoters were opened in Hoboken, N. J., as professional pugilism was then under the ban in New York State.

There were so many bids that it took six hours to read them all. Each bid was accompanied by a certified check with a lot of qualifying notations on the back. There was only one that had no check with it. That was Rickard's.

It was a bid of $101,000 and the money was there in glistening yellowbacks. Jack Johnson was there in person and when he saw all that brand new money laid on the line he made a remark that brought a hunch from the small army of newspaper men present. "Them checks may be good an' all like that, but they don' look so good to this baby as all 'at cash."

Tex Rickard was given the fight and his troubles began.

HUSKY SCHOOL GAMES FEB. 2

By DICK McSWEENEY

Although entries for the Northeastern Interscholastic Track Meet in the Y. M. C. A. gym, Huntington ave., on February 2, have closed, the list of entrants received given promise of some great performances in track and field events.

The events on the program are, 45-yard dash; 300-yard run; 600-yard run; 1000-yard run; 45-yard low hurdles; 12-pound shot put; running high jump, and relay races between various high school teams.

Gold, silver, and bronze medals will be awarded for first, second and third places in each event, while each member of the winning relay teams is to be awarded a bronze medal.

Medford high, champions in the Northeastern meet of '28, will defend its relay championship. The mark established by Medford a year ago was two minutes, 18 seconds, each man running two laps. This time was fast for the "T" track.

Hodder, lw	rw., Earl Kervin
Chase, c	c., Weatherston
Everett, rw	lw., Cole
Pratt, ld	rd., Ed Kervin
Fitzgerald, rd	ld., Wilson
Learnard, g	g., McKenzie

University Club and Moncton Atlantics meet in their second game of the series tonight at the Garden and another thrilling clash is in prospect.

University Club defeated Atlantics, 4 to 0, in the first of the two-game series before the largest amateur crowd of the season in the Garden.

Chase and Hodder each crammed in two goals.

Moncton had more supporters than Boston.

The visiting forwards gave a great exhibition of stick-checking and got several breaks as the result of James' work in center ice.

Crosby made a weaving run down the left as the second period began and passed the defence, but McKenzie flopped and the home right-winger couldn't lift the puck over him.

MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway

"ALL athletes and youngsters who are striving to gain fame in sports can learn a lesson from the life of Bill Dougherty, former assistant managing editor of the Advertiser, who was returned to the earth today," said Mr. Boston.

"As a young man at Exeter and Yale, Bill was quite a track athlete. He made a reputation for giving every ounce of energy in his body until he had hit the tape. He never let down until a race had been won or lost.

"It was natural that Bill should carry this same spirit into the newspaper field. He worked right up to within a few hours of his death which was caused by a heart attack.

"Bill Dougherty liked the newspaper racket because it gave him the same spirit of competition that he got on the track at Exeter and at Yale.

"I met Bill in a Summer st. restaurant while he was in the midst of directing a staff of reporters who were busy getting new angles in regard to the recent Babe Ruth story. Bill, although a newspaper veteran, was as enthusiastic over the big story as a cub on his first assignment. He felt his newspaper was beating the town on the yarn and that thought gave him a thrill.

"Like most successful newspapermen, Bill didn't like to take time off for eating. That was getting him out of the race for news for a few minutes. I could not help but think of this as I listened to him discuss the Ruth story as he ate his food in a purely mechanical manner.

"I FIND that great athletes like Dempsey, Ruth, Hagen, Tilden and Cobb possess the same kind of a spirit that made Bill Dougherty a leader in the newspaper field. They think of very little other than their own profession. This is why they reach the top.

"I was honored by being a member of Bill Dougherty's staff when he was city editor of the Boston Evening American. Bill was that type of executive who could get the most out of a man without using a whip. He inspired us with his own enthusiasm and nobody stopped working until we had hit the tape at the finish line going at full speed.

"Perhaps if you are one of those who have fallen short in athletics or in business it is because you have failed to make that final drive down the home stretch, to give every ounce of energy in your body so as to do a little better than the other fellow.

"TED MEREDITH, one of the greatest quarter and half-mile runners in the history of track sports, had this winning quality. He won many an important race during the last 10 yards.

"Dempsey had it, especially the night Louis Firpo knocked him out of the ring. When the Tiger got back into action, he was out on his feet, but he refused to quit. He carried on and finally knocked out the Wild Bull of the Pampas.

"I HAVE seen Walter Hagen reach the 17th green two down, tie up the match during the last two holes and win out in extra holes.

"I believe the youngster who shows real athletic ability in school and in college is better prepared for the clash of the business world than the boy who dodges sports.

"Hard competition helps us all. It helped to make Bill Dougherty a great newspaper man. And I guess Bill preferred being a leader in his chosen profession than to anything else in the world with the exception of his position as loving husband and fond father."

Percy Williams on Way to Boston

Horotto, Jan 24 — Forty-yard races are entirely new to Percy Williams, fleet-footed Vancouver University student, but he is going into these short sprints in the United States indoor meets "just for experience."

Williams, who won the 100 and 200-meter events at the Olympic games at Amsterdam last summer, and Jimmy Ball of Winnipeg, Olympic 400-meter star, arrived today on their way to Boston, where they will open their tour February 2.

"What value is there in that if it isn't to be a regular thing?" Williams was asked.

"You can't tell," he replied. "Lots of the races down there are only 50 yards. And there is no harm in going into them, is there?"

Penn Five Looks Like Court League Victor

Princeton, N. J., Jan 24 (INS)—With three victories in as many league games, the Pennsylvania basketball team today appears a sure winner in the Eastern Intercollegiate League race. NURMI TO RUN IN K. OF C. AND B. A. A. MEETS

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—The world's indoor two-mile record, a mark of 8 minutes, 54 1-5 seconds which he set four years ago, seems to be the first object of attack as Pravo Nurmi's second American campaign.

Nurmi has announced his schedule for the winter campaign on the boards and the first three races are at two miles. The flying Finn gave out the schedule in order that there may be no misunderstanding as to my engagements.

After warming up last week at the odd distance of 3000 yards, Nurmi will return to a standard distance at the William C. Prout Memorial games of the Boston K. of C. Saturday.

The next Thursday he will try the same distance at the St. Joseph's Catholic Club meet in Newark, N. J., and the following Saturday he is scheduled for a third attempt at the Boston A. A. meet.

Four other starts are on his program although the distances have not been decided nor has he formally entered the meets. They are the Millrose A. A. games, February 9, the New York A. C. meet, February 16; the National A. A. championships in New York, February 23, and the New York K. of C. meet March 16.

"I have signed entry blanks for the January meets," he said yesterday, "and will enter all others in due form at the proper times." With this announcement came another one that his entry blank for the Boston A. A. meet had been received.

Concerning the charges made by Jack Harris, former secretary of the Maxone games committee, and quickly repudiated by the chairman George Keiser, that Nurmi had withdrawn from the Masonic meet here Saturday and decided to run in Boston because "undue influence" had been brought to bear on him, the usually taciturn Finn said:

"No inducements were held out to me to enter the Boston meet other than that I would be of assistance to the family of William C. Prout," Nurmi said. He added that he felt obligated to run because Prout had defended him against "unjust attacks" on his amateur standing during his first American tour in 1925.

Evidently realizing it would have him open the attacks to have a "manager" for his tour, Nurmi, officially at least, severed his relations with Hugo Quist, who has acted as mentor during his American travels, with the statement:

"I have no representative or adviser in this country."

As another bulwark against charges of professionalism, he requested the registration committee to supervise his expenses for all meets.

Complete Description of Sharkey-Christner Battle in Tomorrow's Boston American

As usual, the Boston Evening American will furnish its readers with the most complete and colorful account of the Jack Sharkey-K. O. Christner bout which will take place in the Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. Jack Conway, dean of fight writers, and one of the keenest observers and critics of the game, will furnish a full account of the battle.

Damon Runyon will paint his usual colorful crowd picture for American readers.

The usual full page of pictures will enable the Boston Evening American readers to SEE just how the bout progressed.

If you want the best, most complete and colorful account of this fight, the first in Jack Sharkey's climb to the heavyweight throne, you must read the Boston Evening American.

Order your copy now. Invest two cents wisely and save the price of transportation and a ringside seat.

The SKY RAIDER by COL. LINDBERGH'S FLYING AIDE Donald E. Keyhoe

A Thrilling Mystery Story of Love and Danger

What Has Happened So Far

Dick Trent has just joined the Air Mail Service. On his first trip he carries an important letter from the owner of the old, Old Rand, to his son, Tommy. He locates young Rand drinking, and flies him back to his own field to save him from dismissal. Dick falls in love with lovely Mary Rand and saves her life. Dick tells Lawson, a fellow aviator, of his invention for a skywriting signal code. Lawson informs Dick he is leaving the service to be married. On his last trip Lawson is missing. Dick finds his plane burned and Lawson murdered. A package containing $250,000 is missing. Lawson's skull is crushed in. Dick finds a Luger pistol. Returning to Rand Field he meets Carmichael and Mary Rand. Mary identifies the pistol as "one my father carries!" She asks Dick to drive home with her. On the way he tells her of his love and is happy when she says she loves him. A moment later there is a shot and when she says her father has been shot all morning. A motor arrives. He questions Old Rand a

As [illegible] deepened it seemed to Dick it possessed a kind of [illegible]

His eyes were rubbed raw from all that had happened [illegible] he had gone without sleep, though he was scarcely [illegible]

In the confusion of his thoughts, he could pick no course clearly. He had told Mary Rand he loved her; she had admitted [illegible] But now it seemed as if they were separated [illegible] upon the appearance [illegible]

[illegible] they saw the guard at the gate, a guard that told them they were in reality prisoners. Old Man Rand had retired to his study. He was busy phoning. There was enough on his mind [illegible]

As for Dick, he kept as close to Mary as could be, but [illegible] all to keep them apart. [illegible] with the police and the [illegible]

[illegible] had [illegible] his name, [illegible] was to see Old Man Rand cleared promptly of any suspicion in the matter of [illegible] death. [illegible] Mary, from the corner of the room, gave a little tremulous smile. Dick leaned forward, listening intently. They were with [illegible] at any rate.

"Only a few things I want to ask," the postal inspector went on in his rather slow, matter-of-fact manner. "The moon was quite clear, I'll see you're not bothered any more.

"I'm not much worried about my self," Rand confessed. "It's the loss of that money to the Federal Reserve, and most of all, that poor fellow."

Inspector Kirk's eyes never left [illegible] face. Then they [illegible] sleepy look, but under the lowered lids the glance they shot was penetrating and retentive.

"Well sir, all I want is just to establish the time usual. That ought to be easy. Lawson took off this morning after daybreak, I understand?"

"That's right."

"You saw him start, didn't you?"

"Yes. I left a little time before."

"Oh, yes. Of course. You returned to the house."

Old man Rand was suddenly silent

The Inspector repeated his question, the same gentle voice of inquiry.

"As a matter of fact, I didn't," Rand said suddenly. "It just happens I'd rather not say where I went."

There was a pause. "Are you sure you don't want to?" Kirk asked at last. "It would probably clear up everything—almost—any further ambiguance."

"I'd rather not." Old Man Rand's lips were tight.

"Just as you say. And now I'd like to ask a few questions."

"As many as you like, Jack. I'm sorry I can't tell you where I was but I know you know I had nothing to do with the crime."

"Of course. It would be inspossible for me to think you had."

Rand flung open the library door, and they stepped inside

The boy rose suddenly to her feet with a nervous gesture. "I want all the men are with you at once at my mind. Remember poor [illegible]

The day dragged on slowly. The [illegible] seeming for all the [illegible] for a possibility of further news, was worrying. Though Mary's face [illegible] and [illegible] unhappy, though she scarcely spoke, she seemed to wish to be near Dick, and he drew considerable comfort from his presence.

It was towards four in the afternoon when they had another visitor, whose loyalty at least they could [illegible] This was Tom Bell, arriving as if he had raced to get there. His eyes looked strained but hurt with [illegible] and there was a twisted to one side of his wrinkled collar

"I've heard about everything, I'm disgusted!" he burst out. "Where's father?"

Mr. Rand had heard his son's voice. His own greeting was a [illegible]

"I want to talk with you, Tom, and right now."

For 15 minutes father and son were closeted together. Dick could hear their voices now and then [illegible] suddenly in a hurried Old Man Rand low, gruff [illegible] The silence [illegible] again.

When Tom returned the excitement seemed to have left him. He looked sullen and furious. He made no answer to Mary when she called to him. He disappeared up [illegible]

There seemed to pass, with the unendurable slowness of agony, another hour. Dusk fell [illegible] and the big house was full of shadows. Dick had sat without moving, without speaking, while the grandfather clock ticked out the eternal minutes with mocking [illegible]

The bell rang, and with such [illegible] that he jumped. Mary had risen, too. Old Man Rand had [illegible] into the hallway. The door opened and a little group of figures entered: figures that had somehow a [illegible]

PROTESTS TO "HI-JACKING METHODS" OF INSURANCE LAW

STATE SUPERVISION FAVORED BY WRITER

In connection with its campaign to interest the people of Massachusetts in the bill introduced in the Legislature by Frank A. Goodwin and the Boston Evening American for a State fund to supply compulsory automobile insurance at cost, this newspaper has received many complaints of alleged injustices under the present law.

These complaints alleged failure of persons injured to collect from insurance companies when there was no question as to liability. Former Registrar Goodwin further says that many fake claims are settled by insurance companies because of their half-hearted investigations of cases. Shyster lawyers and quack doctors figure prominently in the settlement of these fake claims, he adds.

SET TIME LIMIT

Under the Goodwin-American bill these things would be eliminated, as all accidents would be investigated within 24 hours, which would not give sufficient time for shysters and quacks to "frame" cases for crooked claims, it is pointed out. In addition, proper claims would receive just attention by the board of three State fund commissioners who would be appointed by the governor and council to administer the fund.

The Goodwin-American bill calls for a rate of $16 compulsory insurance on every passenger car, $25 on every truck, and $50 on every bus, taxi or rental car. These rates would be uniform throughout the State, zoning and graduated scale to be done away with.

A fund of $12,367,504 would be created with these rates in effect, based on 1928 registrations. This would represent a saving of $7,500,000 annually to Massachusetts motorists, of which $3,000,000 would be in insurance commissions, as the private companies will charge $20,000,000 for the insurance they write this year.

Patrick J. Duggan of 17 Holmes st., Quincy, writes, "I have been following your news regarding the bill coming before the legislature on compulsory automobile insurance and as I have had some of the 'hi-jacking methods practiced upon me in the last two years, I believe we need the State to supervise and control the insurance, otherwise, God help the Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

REFUSED TO CANCEL

"I am in the taxi business. Our minimum donation to the insurance company in 1927 was $150 per car regardless of whether it was used on the job one hour per day or seven days and nights a week. We decided to 'junk' a car that we had trouble with and get a new car later. This was the first of March, 1927.

"I notified the agent in writing. After three weeks he notified me that the company refused to cancel as we had not turned the registration plates in to the registry and would have to pay the premium as long as the plates were in our possession.

"Now my contract was with the insurance company, not with the registry, regarding the plates, and as the car was not used on the highways of the State, the plates were another contract altogether, with the registry of motor vehicles.

"The insurance company has brought suit against me for the full amount, $150, even though I sent notice to it the policy was to be cancelled in April. If a man cannot cancel insurance on his own property, then I say, God help the people of Massachusetts."

CALLS IT HOLDUP

"This is a case of just plain barefaced holdup.

"I contend that the State Legislature has not the right to compel the citizens of Massachusetts to pay any private corporation a certain sum of money for any commodity, especially when that commodity is the property of foreign companies, such as insurance, for example.

"To my mind, the State Legislature should establish a State department to handle our insurance and then we would get our own figures as to what it is all about and not statistics handled and garbled by private companies, all paid for by the poor fellows behind the steering wheel.

"I wish to thank the Boston Evening American for the interest it is taking in this matter that concerns the vital welfare of 700,000 people who own automobiles in this State."

C. F. Stiles of 205 Holland st., West Somerville, writes: "I heartily endorse the Goodwin-American bill, and as for injustice under the present law, I would like to state an actual occurence.

"Last August another automobile was in collision with my car and in the accident my wife was severely injured and my car was a total wreck.

OTHER DRIVER FINED

"The accident was no fault of mine which was proved in court, as the driver of the other car was found guilty of driving without a license and driving so as to endanger the lives of the public and he was fined $125 and had his license revoked.

"The insurance company admitted liability both as to property damage and personal injury, but refused to make any settlement taking the stand that it would be foolish on its part to settle any claim when it could tie it up in the courts for six months or a year and then let the court decide the amount.

"It seems hardly fair to me that to own a car in Massachusetts you must have it insured and then if you have an accident through no fault of your own find it impossible to get a settlement without a civil suit. All this, in view of the fact that a criminal conviction against the other party, and an acknowledgement from the insurance company of liability."

Petition to Legislature to Pass Auto Insurance Bill

IS your auto insurance costing you too much? Ought the law to compel you to furnish profits to private companies? Do the present zone rates seem fair to you?

Would you like the overhead cut from compulsory insurance?

Would you like to get your insurance and registration at one counter, at one time, and for one price? If so, sign the accompanying petition:

I am a citizen of Massachusetts and sign this petition to the Legislature to pass the new compulsory auto insurance bill proposed by Frank A. Goodwin and endorsed by the Boston Evening American.

New Hampshire Man Given Rescue Medal

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 24—Award of a bronze medal by the Carnegie Hero Fund commission to Boromo Pelchat, 29, of 414 Amory st., Manchester, N. H., was announced. Pelchat saved Alice Crete, 23, and Therese Landry, 11, from drowning at Manchester on July 15, 1928.

Miss Crete and Miss Landry were wading in the Piscataquog river when they stepped into deep water. Pelchat swam from the opposite shore to rescue them and, after diving twice, he got both girls ashore. The girls were unconscious but were later revived.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

DINE AND DANCE

Tonight is theatrical night at the Symphony Restaurant, 253 Huntington ave., and a large array of talent is listed on the program, including a number of guests from the big shows playing in the city.

Every Friday night is collegiate night with a number of dance contests. Three gold prizes are awarded. Miss Violet Gridley, popular night club entertainer, is hostess this week. Percy Bernard and his velvet tone recording orchestra, offer an excellent program of dance music.

The Adelphi Restaurant, 1247 Commonwealth ave., recently opened under new management, featuring real home cooked dinners bridge parties and banquets. Situated with home-like surroundings, noon-day luncheons and dinners in the evening are served daily.

* * *

Mah Jong, Boston's newest Chinese American night club, located at the corner of Warrenton and Tremont sts., is becoming one of the popular downtown dine and dance resorts. Scotty Holmes and his orchestra are featured for dancing. A cabaret show and vaudeville are presented three times daily. Every Tuesday night is clown night and every Wednesday night is theatrical night.

Boston restaurants have a wide variation in decorations and atmosphere to resemble many of the foreign countries, but newest of them all is the Chinese village at Young's Kenmore, located at Kenmore station.

Manager Harry King announces that the complete redecorating program of the village will be ready for the opening, on Friday night, with a gala program of extra talent from Boston and New York.

The elaborate decorations in expensive silk, blending with unusual lighting effects, the waiters and musicians in Chinese costumes will create a real Oriental atmosphere. Manager King plans some extra attractions every evening.

Henry Davis and his broadcasting orchestra will render some special Chinese selections in addition to the regular program of dance music.

An excellent mid-season show is offered under the able direction of "Mickie" Alpert, the popular and talented master-of-ceremonies at Boston's noted restaurant "Cocoanut Grove," this week.

"Mickie" as usual has his own offering, while the dancing is to the soothing music of Jacques Renard and his orchestra. The revue offered at the Cocoanut Grove ecstures during the dinner hours, from 6 o'clock until 9, and twice later in the evening, between 11 o'clock and 1.

"Cocoanut Grove" has become one of the popular eating, dancing and amusement centers in the city through the excellency of its food, the high quality of its entertainment and the excellent atmosphere promoted for the guests.

'Petting Bandit' Is Heir to Big Estate

Los Angeles, Jan. 24—The Examiner today said that Elvin B Grainger, 26, one of the two alleged "petting party bandits" held in jail here in default of $20,000 bonds each, is heir to an estate valued at nearly $1,000,000. Grainger and Clinton Abbott, 20, both of Riverdale, Calif., were arrested Jan. 1 and are held on 20 counts of robbery. They were identified by many of their alleged victims.

The newspaper says that the late Mrs. Harriet C. Willard, owner of an oil field south of Santa Paula, Calif., bequeathed Grainger, a nephew, a share of the estate, to be held in trust until he reaches the age of 30, which he has an income from it of $400 to $800 a month.

MOVIE MAGNATE MAY BE NAMED AMBASSADOR

By IOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1929, Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 24—Holly wood fairly sizzles with the report that Louis B. Mayer is resigning from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer on March 7, to accept the post of ambassador to Turkey, recently tendered him by President-elect Hoover.

In the midst of all this talk of one of our own motion picture people becoming a diplomat, the hero of the story sits calmly in his office at the M-G-M studio, neither affirming nor denying the report.

"Naturally, I would consider an appointment the finest compliment of my life," Mayer said, "but so far there is really nothing to tell. I am going to Washington to the inauguration for, as you know, I was one of the original Hoover men. But further than that, I am not prepared at this time to say."

There is talk that Mayer made something like $2,000,000 this last year, and his friends are urging for him to retire. The fortune part he admits, and the fact that money is no longer a necessity to urge him, but the rest of the story up to date, is not getting affirmation.

Personally I hope he doesn't. I believe there is more in the Mayer appointment than were idle gossip. It is a compliment to the able body worked harder than L. B. for the election of Hoover and if is also no secret that Hoover is a warm personal friendship between the two men.

A PROPHET is always without honor in his own house. Doris Kenyon was considered a very fine dramatic and stunning actress, but no Bernhard. They never said as much to Doris, but she is psychic enough to sense that feeling so she left this company and incidentally her place as Milton Sills' leading woman.

"There is no chance for me, playing opposite my husband," said Doris. Then she made "Interference," a talkie and Milton made "The Barker" and simultaneously the Kenyon-Sills stock rose. There was more cure taken in selecting Milton Sills' leading woman. Special care in selecting his leading women.

"Pat and Mike" is his next and after weeks of combing Hollywood it is the joke of the age that they literally had to go to Ireland to return to the studio and once again play opposite her husband. Doris has accepted and "Pat and Mike" goes into production this week with Frank Lloyd directing.

THERE is much excitement in the life of Vera Reynolds. On Tuesday she was married for a second marriage to Robert Ellis was made public. Wednesday the Fox company sent for her and asked her to put her name on a long term contract. I don't know whether she signed Vera Reynolds Ellis or just Vera Reynolds because I didn't see the piece of paper that made her a Fox player.

* * *

BY the way, to date, the announcement of her marriage isn't going to interfere with her career. In fact, it seems to have helped it for in this day and age we are not agin good honest marriages as we were in the days when Mrs. Francis X. Bushman tried to keep his wife and five children a secret.

* * *

CAN it be that Walter Hagen, golf champion, is contemplating going into the movies again? Rumor has it that Walter Hagen need not fear the camera. He made a picture for Tiffany-Stahl last year and no one has ever said that the actor-golfer is a good golf player." At any rate, he is remaining in Hollywood while his buddies have gone on to Texas for a golf meet.

MARION SPITZER is the kind of girl who will try anything once. She must have been the type of girl that wanted to see the wheels go round in the days when interest in knowing just how things are done. For instance, she is playing a part in "Murder Will Out," at the Fox studio, for Howard Hawks. They needed a reporter and who better than Marion knows how to report.

She will forsake her writing at the Fox studio while she acts and who knows but that she may prove a big star in the making. Director Harlan Thompson, hopes she won't turn in a Greta Garbo and who would make life very intricate to marry a writer and have her turn out to be a movie star.

MICROPHONE MENUS

MANY A MAN, laid up with the flu these days is hearing the sort of chatter his womenfolks listen to morning after morning. "Beat up six cubes of Dominating sugar in a one-gallon Serendip crock. Add Musselini brand garlick to taste, sprinkle with sprigs of real Saugus Bacon and fry to a rich brown in a Bay of Whales electric refrigerator. . . ."

TELEGRAPHIC BOUQUETS

THE WESTERN UNION has found a way to shake every day of the year another Mother's Day. Father's Day, Thanksgiving, Easter and Yom Kippur for those stormtossed navigators of the air waves who performed for us nightly. Little thought has the careless public given to the possible tragedy which wrecked the career of the seemingly light-hearted announcer. Who ever pauses to wonder whether the familiar note of pathos in the Silvestoned Soprano is due to art emotion or the absence of pre-layed alimony payments? Radio artists are part of our family life, and it is time we let go our ready-made ten-word telegrams to express every degree of enthusiasm, gratitude, hope, affection, salutation, beseechment and what not, from listener to performer.

ON WINGS OF THOUGHT

AS THE IDEA grows, the thrilled listener will get the habit of stepping to the wake every day of the year another Mother's Day,

A Good Bill

The Goodwin Measure to Provide Compensation for Motor Vehicle Injuries and Deaths Should Be Enacted

Upon petition of Frank A. Goodwin, former State registrar of motor vehicles, a bill has been introduced in the Massachusetts House of Representatives (H. 225) for establishment of a state fund to provide compensation for injuries and deaths due to accidents caused by motor vehicles.

Under the terms of this bill a flat rate of $16 would be charged on every passenger automobile at the time it is registered. The sum of $25 would be charged for every truck and $50 for every bus, taxicab or rental car.

The former registrar of motor vehicles, who probably knows more about the workings of automobile laws than any man in Massachusetts, says that, based upon the registrations of 1928, a fund amounting to $12,367,804 would be raised if the above mentioned sums were charged.

He points out that, under the new rates, recently promulgated by the Acting State Insurance Commissioner, $20,000,000 will be paid for compulsory automobile insurance to private insurance companies by Massachusetts motorists in 1929, based upon the registrations of 1928.

He adds that the amount to be collected under his proposed law would be sufficient to take care of all accident and death claims and to administer the fund.

This means that Massachusetts motorists would save $7,500,000 annually if this bill becomes law, according to Mr. Goodwin. Of this vast sum, $3,000,000 alone would represent the commissions of insurance agents. Pretty fair sized sum to take out of your pockets, motorists! Don't you think so?

Under Mr. Goodwin's proposed law the zoning system would be wiped out as also would the alleged unfair method of charging according to the size and power of a car.

Is it not as easy to maim or kill a man or child with a Ford as with a Rolls Royce? And is it fair that you should be charged $24 more for insurance because you garage your automobile in Brighton than in a garage in the next street, which happens to be in Brookline?

Why should anyone profit from business of this character? The correct answer is—no one should. The powerful insurance lobby is already fighting this bill of Mr. Goodwin's and the reason is obvious to a child in the kindergarten.

Under the Goodwin bill three commissioners, to be appointed by the Governor and Council, will administer the fund. A good feature of the bill is that it calls for the immediate investigation of all accidents by registry of motor vehicle investigators. This would eliminate many of the fake claims that private insurance companies now pay. It would also put crooked lawyers and doctors out of this line of business.

Mr. Goodwin characterizes as "nonsense" the argument that the proposed law is Socialistic, as it would put the State in business. He says that as the State has compelled its motorists to carry insurance against accidents, it ought to provide the service at cost. What could be fairer?

The Boston Evening American believes Mr. Goodwin's bill is a good bill and has joined forces with him to assist in its passage. Every Massachusetts motorist should get behind it and appoint himself a committee of one to urge its passage. It seems to be the best way out of a bad mess.

A Worthy Cause

The Boston Y. M. C. A. Is Seeking Public Contributions to Round Out Its Budget

The Boston Y. M. C. A., the oldest branch of that organization in the United States, has passed through another successful year. It has maintained its splendid record of business efficiency in offering a broad program for the benefit of boys and young men. It provides a character building machine of tremendous value. It does its work on a basis of cost, or less. Hence, each year, it requires a small sum to round out its budget. The Y. M. C. A. canvass for public contributions is in progress until February 1. If by any chance a canvasser doesn't visit you, contributions may be mailed to the Boston Y. M. C. A.

German Peace Plan

Everything Helps

The Germans, anxious to prove their peaceful disposition, offered very few "soldier" toys last Christmas.

But you cannot do away so easily with interest in fighting. German toy shops sell the next best thing—knights in armor and Indians with tomahawks. To change the human race you must change the human brain—changing toys, or laws, won't do it.

That would be safer for Germany than to repudiate bonds held by France, England and Italy. Those countries might attack Germany to collect the money. This country never would. Little American bondholders would thoughtfully digest their loss. That would end it.

If Mr. Gilbert can arrange for American financiers to pay cash for German bonds, with a good profit for American high finance, Germany will be able to say, "If the worst comes to the worst, we can safely repudiate the whole deal as coercive, unjust and not binding."

Better Air Mail

Thanks to New and Coolidge

From Miami the other morning went a mail plane, started by Postmaster-General New on its way, leaving mail at Havana at 11:30 a. m. the same day, going on to Porto Rico the next morning, then to Santo Domingo. Planes both ways will leave every Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

This Pan-American air service will eventually link the ple of South America with the air mail system of the ed States. That is progress. It will realize the hope Mr. Hoover expressed on his visit to the South American blics.

The people are indebted to Postmaster-General New and dent Coolidge for an air mail service that develops avia- in America.

Day by Day Abroad

O.O. McINTYRE

HAVRE—The Normandy coast and its perpetually sad drizzle. But in five hours we will be thundering into Paris and—perhaps more rain. The piratical porters with their blue blouses, garlic breaths, and lobster-red hands swarmed aboard early. The ship warns tipping them is optional. And that's a grand laugh.

Having subsisted on tea, fruits and salted nuts for the voyage, there was a magic in the sudden restoration of appetite the minute I stepped on land, and breakfast at a modest little pension a few steps from the pier never tasted so good. There was a relish even to the chicory coffee.

The dinky little boat trains with their doleful peanut whistles puffed patiently in the dock sheds waiting for custom clearance. Nobody ever quits a steamer without having something behind. You may ransack your cabin with a fine-tooth comb and return later to find perhaps a boss drum. All I left was an overcoat.

Just as in every other seaport in the world, one is certain to meet at Havre—the Man From Cook's. I do not go on Cook Tours, but I find a Cook guide indispensable in cutting the annoying little tangles of red tape, relieving you of the tipping and assisting you through customs. And for a modest purboo.

Prowling through one of the ancient streets of Havre a voice from a dingy little shop called my name. Out hobbled an old woman in sabots, stooped and supported by a crooked stick. Many years ago she was a chambermaid at a New York hotel, and with her savings had purchased the little flyblown store.

The clop of the stock horses on the cobblestones, the rude tattoo of wooden shoes, the rhythmic pussing of the sea and the tantalizing smells of vintage wine and delicious pastries make Havre pleasant for the voyager. And, of course, the curious jumble of French peasantry—starring one out of countenance.

Old World obeisance to plume and feathers was marked here. On the ship was a thrice-belted earl whom nobody noticed. And yet at Havre the mayor in all his regalia, accompanied by an eight-piece band, arrived with a fanfare of trumpets to welcome him in his hour's stay.

O, YES, at breakfast the French pride in its culinary skill was illustrated. It was only a three-table cafe to which you walked through a kitchen of shiny pots and pans. I ordered an omelette and when the cook lifted the lid with the customary flourish an edge was scorched. He was devastated. I thought he was going to have a spell as he tossed it out a window with a curse and made another. Chefs are decorated in France and monuments are erected to them. One begins to understand faintly why the immortal cook of one of the Louis—the 14th. I think—fell on his sword after he burned the fish.

I HAVE always thought what leisure I had in life—not devoted to waiting for my wife to attend the theater—might be profitably spent in a seacoast town. Inland cities are standardized, but seaports are not. Marseilles, Cherbourg and Havre offer the same architecture, but they are as different as San Francisco, Naples and Hong Kong. And the tug of adventure is irresistible.

WALKING with my head knocking the stars along the rock sea wall at Havre, for instance, I was overwhelmed by an enthusiasm to escape the humdrum of a disordered life of petty scribbling in New York and retire somewhere to solitude—you know, Real Work and The Lonely Way. In Paris or New York I would never give way to such ridiculous musings.

THE leisure of Europe is always appealing, at least for a few weeks. Two hours to dawdle over luncheon. Sauntering down the bouley, ots to slip on a pernitf at a sidewalk cafe. Nine o'clock dinners, etc. For the laggards it becomes a pleasing soporific, but after a short while the wide-awake American wants to return to clock punching and hurry-up luncheons. The old dog and new tricks.

IF one must take to tall drinking and low living, France is the ideal spot. On a narrow crooked street in Havre the American high ball was advertised for three francs—12 cents—and lodging overhead was five francs—20 cents—with breakfast.

Serviss on Star Names

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

"Will you please tell us the meaning and origin of the names of the stars? I do not mean the planets, and I believe the mythological names of the constellations are generally known, Altair, Deneb, Albireo or Beta Cygni, Vega, Antinous, Arcturus, Capella, Fomalhaut, Betelgeuse, Rigel, Sirius, Spica, Alcyone, Canopus, Kruger 60, Aldebaran, Procyon, Regulus, Alpheratz, Gamma Pegasus, Alpha Centuri, Omega Centuri, Kappa, etc. These are the names that the layman runs across most frequently."—Mrs. F. C. H.

THE Arabs are responsible for the majority of the names—the ancient Arabs of the sandy desert, whose fanciful designations of the stars were spread over the world by the learned Arabs of the glorious days of Bagdad and Cordova. However, many of the names are really of Greek origin, having been translated and transformed from Ptolemy's great book on astronomy.

There have been many books written on star nomenclature in modern times, the most famous being Ideler's work in German. Nearly 30 years ago Richard Hinckley Allen of New Jersey published the most comprehensive book on the subject in English—"Star Names and Their Meanings." This is probably the best work of the kind in any language, for Allen devoted years to the collection of his materials from all available sources and arranged them with great care and thoroughness.

As the names are currently employed they are usually in abbreviated forms, chosen from a number of alternatives, or single significant words selected from a phrase or sentence of a descriptive or imaginative character. Taking up the names that you mention, for instance, we find that Altair is condensed from Al Nasr al Tair, meaning the Flying Eagle, but considering all three of the stars that form the beautiful tri-starred line in the constellation Aquila, the Eagle. In this case the constellation name is Latin, though the name of its chief star is Arabic. This recurs often.

Deneb in Cygnus (the same name occurs in several other constellations) is, according to Allen, from Al Dhanab al Dajajah, meaning the Tail of the Hen.

Albireo in Cygnus, a double colored star of great beauty, was thus named, it appears, through a misunderstanding, the Arabic appellation being Al Minhar al Dajajah, the Hen's Beak. What we call the Swan (Cygnus) was the Hen, and the star Albiero is situated at the end of the long line of small stars forming the outstretched neck, as drawn in Durer's constellation figures.

Vega, the name of the dazzling gem of the Lyre, should be spelled Wega to correspond with its Arabic origin. I do not know the meaning.

Antares, the name of the great red star in Scorpio, is of Greek origin, and is generally interpreted as meaning "rival to Mars" (because of its color). The Arabic name was Kalb al Akrab, the Heart of the Scorpion.

Arcturus is Greek, meaning the Bear-Guard since, with its constellation Bootes, it follows the great Bear in his nightly circling about the pole.

Capella is Latin, meaning the little she goat. The Arabs called it Al Rakib, the Driver, and associated it with the group of the Pleiades, regarded as a troop of camels. But Capella is far north of the Pleiades, though rising near the same time.

Fomalhaut is from the Arabic Fum al Hut, the fish's mouth, its place being in the Southern Fish (Piscis Australis).

Betelgeuse, the famous orange star in Orion's shoulder, is said by Allen to be derived from the Arabic Ibt al Jauzah, meaning the Armpit of the Central One.

Rigel, in Orion's left foot, is from the Arabic Rijl Jauzah al Yusra, which Allen translates "Left Leg of the Jauzah." The Jauzah was regarded as a great ruler, possessed of a troop of camels.

For the sake o space I must cut short the other definitions, thus: Sirius, is Greek, probably meaning the sparkling ore; Spica is Latin, meaning the Ear of Wheat; Alcyone was the name of the most beautiful of the seven daughters of Atlas, the father of the Pleiad sisters; Canopus is Greek, a name for the pilot of the ship Argos. Aldebaran is from the Arabic Al Dabaran, meaning the follower, as it "follows" the Pleiades.

RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

THIS magnetism is a gift, a thing of such surprising worth that it can raise men up, can lift them high above the ranks of Earth. It lends its glories to the low, the plain, the poor, the weak, sometimes, and where its magic currents flow life's dullest line with music chimes. Intangible as morning mist. Elusive as the breath of song; yet men, impotent to resist, beneath its lures are drawn along to every folly, every sin, or every height great souls attain. Through magnetism clowns can win what kings, without it, seek in vain.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

ONCE I looked on a dead face.

For me, all life had centered about that face.

We had had 21 years together—sweet days of babyhood—dear, foolish years of childhood—bright adventuring years of young manhood. Then he had gone his way and I was left alone.

When I looked at that face and thought that we would never have any more years together I did not see how I could stand it.

Then there came flooding over me, in a bitter tide, the memory of all the petty, unkind things I had done to that loved one, the times I had failed or hurt him—the spoiled moments.

And my grief as I thought of those moments, was infinitely greater than my grief over the lost years. I knew that I could have faced the empty years bravely if I had never marred the moments.

And suddenly I saw that it is not the quantity of love that counts, but the quality.

Not the time we spend together but the use we make of that time—

We may spend many years in the closest relationship yet never glimpse the heights and depths of love.

It is better to have loved perfectly for one minute than to have loved carelessly for a long life time.

We give such patient service to manual labor, exhausting ourselves in delicate detail—but in that service of love we are so negligent.

We procrastinate—putting off an expression of our devotion, thinking, of all the tomorrows we will have together.

We fall into shabby habits, being so sure that we own each other that we no longer need to exercise "company manners."

So time drifts by and our hearts go hungry.

Yet each moment, for all we know, may be love's greatest opportunity. That moment, which we have filled with indifference or actual unkindness might have held love's greatest need or most poignant response. And that moment will not come again.

I learned this truth in that terrible hour when I looked on that dear dead face. I learned it too late.

Try to learn before it is too late. Stop thinking of the quantity of love you may have—the years you may spend together.

Think rather of the quality of your love, giving all the beauty and tenderness that lies in you to each opportunity for expression.

Give that beauty and tenderness NOW!

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

SOMEBODY is always predicting the doom of marriage.

Lots of sophisticated young women declare there is no reason why an enlightened girl should marry, these days. And lots of cynical young men retort that there never WAS any reason why an enlightened man should marry. So there!

Take it from them, this earth will soon be just like heaven, where there is "neither marrying nor giving in marriage."

But the cabinet-makers still continue to turn out hope chests, the jeweleers go right on making platinum wedding-bands and the clerks of the marriage license bureau still continues to look all fagged out around the end of June!

* * *

The truth is that dear old marriage has had its face lifted and its skirts shortened and become so rejuvenated that we don't recognize it any more! It is no longer STANDARDIZED. It is modernized.

* * *

You can no longer spot a wedded pair by "that married look." You can't even tell the matrons from the debutantes, or the husbands from the bachelors, at a country club dance.

* * *

There is no such thing as a typical married woman—plump, resigned, dowdy and complacent looking. And no such person as the old-fashioned standardized husband—serious, overworked, bone-broken and seedy looking. Marriage doesn't come in bulk, in lumbazine, any more. It comes in a thousand attractive disguises, like soda water.

* * *

We don't even marry for the same old, standardized reason, today. Fancy a modern man marrying in order to acquire a cook and housekeeper! Fancy a up-to-date girl marrying in order to get "Mrs." after calling cards and a lifelong meal ticket!

* * *

We may marry for any one of a thousand reasons—for companionship or for romance; for a lifework or for rest; for experience or for inspiration; for love, for money, for a playmate, for a yoke-mate or for a working partner.

* * *

We may marry on a shoestring and we may marry on an impulse.

We may marry for life—or marry for an experiment. We may marry today, unmarry tomorrow, and remarry the next day!

* * *

Marriage has become the union of two individuals for their individual reasons—and it's nobody's business but their OWN!

* * *

But the point is, that today, yesterday and forever, we KEEP RIGHT ON MARRYING!

Marriage may be changed, diluted, disguised and "improved." But it is still the only union that satisfies the human soul. And no life is complete without it!

Boston American's Policies For Boston-New England

FOR BOSTON:

1—Clean streets.
2—Solution of traffic and parking problems.
3—Better pay for honest public service.
4—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
5—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land, in order that Boston properly supplied with first-class hotels, may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

FOR NEW ENGLAND:

1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.
3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods
